EASTERN KENTUCKY IS HIT BY A FLOOD

STORM TOLL IS 100 KILLED PROPERTY LOSS FIVE MILLION

Desolation In Element's Wake—Thousands Homeless In the Mountain Districts—List of Dead To Grow Upon Resumption of Communication With Isolated Communities—Relief Efforts Underway In Louisville and Lexington—Frame Work of Paducah Hotel Levelled.

The storm disaster in eastern Kentucky has assumed major proportions and has been augmented by resultant floods, a relief committee was told Friday at a conference at Louisville, Kentucky.

More than 100 lives have been lost, thousands are homeless and property damage is estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Appalling desolation lies in the wake of the cloudbursts of Sunday and Monday. The toll of human life will be increased when mountain valley villages, which have been cut off from communication with the outside world, are heard from.

There are more than 30 dead in Perry county, with property damage of $2,000,000 in Hazard alone.

Coal operators in the Big Sandy valley alone were said to face a loss of $500,000 thru inability to send coal to Great Lakes ports because of washout.

The bridge connecting Hazard proper with the railroad station and wholesale district across the river has been swept away. Passengers entering Hazard are forced to cross the river by ferry.

"The county is bankrupt!" says Sheriff William Cornett. "It is undoubtedly the worst catastrophe Kentucky has ever known."

Hazard virtually has been without drinking water since Sunday, and there is fear of disease unless immediate steps of prevention are taken. The food situation apparently is not serious.

A car loaded with food supplies for flood sufferers left Hazard Friday and another train was being load Friday night.

Dr. A. T. McCormick, secretary of the state board of health, has been designated chairman of the Kentucky district relief committee. He announced Friday that a preliminary survey indicated the disaster was of major proportions, approximately 125,000 persons being in the affected area and 75,000 others in adjacent territory.

A finance committee appealed for a relief fund of $100,000, $50,000 of which was to be raised in Louisville alone. Latest compilations indicated that 44 of the dead had been identified.

A drive for funds to aid the thousands in the Hazard section who have been made homeless and hungry by storms, was launched Friday at board of commerce headquarters at Lexington Kentucky.

Owed Reputation to Dante
Sordello, a Provencal troubadour, who lived from 1180 to 1255, owes his reputation chiefly to Dante, who mentions him eight times in his "Purgatorio." Nothing survives of his prose and only a few poems.

workers and the public at large attended the meeting, at which the gravity of the situation at Hazard and adjacent towns was related.

Severe damage was done to property by a storm that swept Paducah and western Kentucky early Friday. Hail fell in nearly all counties of the Purchase, according to telephone reports. The wind unroofed a number of barns and buildings in the rural districts and did damage in Paducah.

The heaviest damage was the destruction of the six story steel frame work of the Ritz hotel. The entire steel structure, which workmen were preparing to rivet, was blown down. Steel beams were blown against a filling station of the Gulf Refining company, damaging it.

Brick work on the new hotel was to have been started this week. The damage probably will exceed $20,000.

Rev. A. G. Crosswhite, the new pastor of the Church of the Brethren, in this city, came here from Peru, Indiana, and was vice president of the Peru Ministerial association, which organization adopted the following resolution:

"The members of the Peru Ministerial association deeply regret that the Rev. A. G. Crosswhite, pastor of the Church of the Brethren of our city, is soon to leave us for another field of labor.

"His seven years of faithful service in the local pastorate have been fruitful along all lines and have been marked with the forward look and advance never known to the local church before. His fellowship and wise counsel with the brethren in the association will also be greatly missed, for he was a regular attendant and always ready to enter service whenever and wherever called to do so.

"Therefore, We love him for the work's sake as well as for his own sake. Our relations have been brotherly and pleasant.

"On Brother Crosswhite's acceptance of the call to Circleville, Ohio, Church of the Brethren, we are keenly aware that we lose a true and faithful colaborer in the Lord's cause here. We pray that the greatest success may attend his ministry in his new field."

"The church, the temperance reform and every good cause loses one of its most loyal and consistent supporters. Such cooperation as that given by Mr. Dunlap and yourself was largely responsible for the launching and development of the American Issue Publishing company. ### Silver Dollar Once Made Five Quarters

Annapolis, Md.—Old records show that silver tokens for making change were first used in this country in Annapolis. With the consent of the government I. Chalmers, an Annapolis gold and silversmith, in 1783 turned out by hand sixpence, threepence and shilling coins to combat sharpers who, after depreciation of paper money, began to cut five "quarters" out of silver Spanish dollars.

Because of lack of change the cutting of Spanish dollars into halves and fourths was condoned, and even necessary, until it was discovered that expert cutters were reaping a small fortune. When expertly cut the fifths could be discerned from quarters only by keen eyesight or by weighing. Chalmers produced new standard coins and took the short pieces in exchange until the fraud was stopped.

There's one good thing about having rheumatism, you don't need to buy a barometer to tell when there's going to be change in the weather.

Divorce is the gateway thru which men and women hope to pass into greener pastures and more beautiful fields.

ROTARIANS

Hosts To Senior Boys of Circleville High School.

When the Rotary club entertained the members of the senior class of the Circleville High School at their regular noon-day luncheon at the Boggs Hotel yesterday, Prof. Hastings Eells, of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, brought a message to the youths that will give them all something to think of during the summer vacation.

"Father, Son and College," was the subject of the talk which Prof. Eells delivered to his audience which was composed of twenty-seven youths, members of the Senior class, Supt. Eagleson, Prof. Cain and Prof. Daley of the faculty and their hosts. He spoke to them about entering college as that is the foremost thought in the mind of every boy of today who finishes high school. This is as it should be, according to Prof. Eells, as the every day necessities of this age practically demand at least a few years of college. There are many lines of endeavor today that demand it, that a few years ago admitted persons without this accomplishment.

Prof. Eells told the boys that the ones who get the most out of their college course are those who make their own way through with only a little help from their parents. The first year, according to him, is the hardest and if assistance is obtained at this time the worthwhile youth can easily make his own way afterward.

The talk was very interesting and instructive and came at a time when it made the greatest impression on the boys.

This is the second affair of this kind at which the Rotarians have been the hosts and the boys apparently enjoyed the affair thoroughly.

ANDREWS RAPPED

New York, June 2.—(U.P.)—Pressure exerted by brewery interests was blamed by Ira L. Reeves, former prohibition administrator for New Jersey, today for his relief from duty by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews.

The way he was relieved was termed by Reeves in a letter to Andrews "the most contemptible which could be conceived." He submitted his resignation April 28, but agreed not to press it. Again on May 6, he resigned, and on May 23, Andrews accepted his withdrawal. Reeves was succeeded the next day by James E. Jones.

Hay Equipment and Practices
Certain Methods Often Employed When Others Would Be Superior.
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Many different methods and practices of putting up hay are followed by growers in large hay-producing sections. Some growers follow certain practices because of the size of the haying operations, some because of climatic conditions, some because of the kind of hay or the quality desired. Through continuous use certain practices are often employed when others would be superior. Many hay growers are getting satisfactory results with the methods they now use, but there are others who could lower their costs by changing, according to L. A. Reynoldson, economist, and C. D. Kinsman, agricultural engineer of the United States Department of Agriculture.
Have Equipment Ready.
Putting up hay is an operation that, even under the most favorable conditions, requires more constant attention and efficient handling than most other farm operations. Because of the comparatively short season, delays are costly. It is essential, therefore, that the equipment be in good shape before haying begins and that sufficient repair parts are always on hand.
The best equipment to use for haying varies according to the kind of hay, yield per acre, quality of hay desired, topography of the hay land, quantity produced each year and the distance hay is hauled from field to stacks.
Different Mower Types.
Some of the different types and sizes of mowers, sulky rakes, sweep rakes and stackers used by hay growers in certain sections are better adapted to conditions in other sections than those now in use there. Many of the items of special equipment and some of the labor-saving devices and methods used by different men could be employed with profit by others.
In Idaho a crew of 14 men will stack 80 to 90 tons of alfalfa daily, using slips and a Mormon derrick. This hay brings a premium of 10 to 20 per cent over that put up by other methods. In Colorado a seven-man crew stacks only 30 tons with a similar outfit. In Montana, a five-man crew stacks 30 to 40 tons with an overshot stacker and sweep rakes.
A crew of eight men in Colorado using a slide stacker and home-made sweep rakes will stack about 65 tons of wild hay per day. In Nebraska, a four-man crew using an overshot stacker with a backboard and front-board will put up 32 tons. Without the latter device, another man would be necessary.
A crew of six men using a slide stacker and sweep rakes stacks 60 tons of irrigated timothy and alsike hay per day.
Farmers who feed cattle should be interested in a method of handling hay in Nebraska whereby four to five tons can be taken from the stack, put on a wagon and pitched off in the feed lot in about one hour.
This and other information is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1526-F, "Effective Haying Equipment and Practices," a copy of which may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Pasture Without Grain Is Not Enough for Pigs
That it is not profitable nor advisable to attempt to grow pigs on pasture without grain is shown by some work done at the Kentucky station a few years ago. Some pigs weighing 63 pounds each were turned on rye pasture on March 19 and kept there for 42 days, no grain being fed. They did not maintain their weight, in fact they lost 5 pounds during the time. Some other pigs weighing 82 pounds each were turned on clover and bluegrass pasture on May 13. On July 4 these pigs averaged 90 pounds each, having gained only 8 pounds in 53 days.

Agricultural Notes
Legume bacteria work for nothing.
Every farm should have some means of extinguishing fires.
Doves are important weed destroyers. It is said. One dove was found to eat 9,200 weed seeds at a single meal.
Only ten minutes of actual human labor is required to produce a bushel of wheat.
Crops grown on the farm or locally usually form the most economical feeding ration.
When cutting soy beans for hay, cut when the beans are formed in one-third of the pods.
Rape is a garden crop, or should be. Many people do not know it, but out of rape can be made one of the best salads, or "greens," known.
After grain is cut and stacked or threshed the stubble field furnishes a cheap pasture for sheep. Rape sown in the stubblefield will also make excellent sheep pasture.

HOLDS INTEREST IS OWED STATE
Several thousand dollars is owed the State of Ohio through delays in sending to the state treasurer funds held in local banks in the name of the secretary of state while the office was held by Thad H. Brown, according to an opinion rendered Wednesday by Attorney General Edward Turner to Joseph T. Tracy, state auditor.
The exact amount of money involved has not been determined, but it is indicated it will be in excess of $35,000, for which Brown and his bondsmen and the various banks are responsible, the opinion said. The money was received from sale of automobile license tags.
There are probably 300 banks scattered throughout the state involved in the case. The question to be determined is how much the state lost in interest through having the money in the banks at two per cent when, if it had been turned into the treasury promptly, it might have earned four per cent.

The amount of money the banks will be asked for depends upon how much profit they made through these delayed deposits, and this is highly problematical. The state auditor's office plans to compute the figure and then certify the amounts to the attorney general for whatever action he may see fit to take.—Columbus Citizen.

Free Sun Bath Allowed

By Permeable Clothing

London.—Sunlight treatment will be presently available, not only artificially and inexpensively, but will be free
for all if the claim put forth by Prof. A. M. Low proves justified. This British scientist claims to have devised a method by which clothing
without change of appearance or dur-

Clothes from the treated material
would mean health for all men and women, the scientist declares. His
claimed discovery of a free sun bath

It's a wise woman who knows half
that she would like to know about
her neighbors.

There are some things that are better said than done, but lovemaking
isn't one of them.

A corn and apple show is to be an annual feature at a bank in Baltimore County, Maryland. Another banker
has been able to get his county to
"thinking corn," over 500 farmers planting improved corn. Many other bankers in the state are giving moral support and funds to this work.

MANLESS TRACTOR AMAZES FARMERS

Plows Without Guidance in Exhibition Test.

Lincoln, Neb.—A machine that
plows a field without human guidance
was given a demonstration at the agricultural college farm recently.

Groups of interested persons watched the machine as it went about alone, with no hand at the wheel, guided solely by an arm carrying a shoe gliding along the furrow made on the previous round. To prepare a field for this operation requires that the first furrow be made under guidance and that the corners
be rounded off by the same means to permit the machine to plow around
the field without stopping.

A safety pilot, the invention of Frank L. Zybach, a young farmer, guided the plow around this field without stopping, except when for demonstration purposes the guide was lifted
out of the furrow. Then the machine automatically came to rest.

A simple device costing from $35
to $50 which can be attached to any tractor can be made to guide a gang
of plows day and night, 22 hours out of 24 if necessary, with only the casual attention of the farmer. Theoretically plowing can go on all day
and all night. It only requires two hours out of the 24 to water and fuel and care for the engine. Even the experimental machines have been left alone to plow, while the farmer goes
to town and remains away for hours.

The Good Time Coming

President John H. Moss was responding to a toast in his honor at a Kiwanis banquet in Milwaukee:

"The condition of Russia under Bolshevism," he went on, "was curiously hit off by an I. W. W. orator, who shouted from his soap box one day:

"Yes, gents, there's a good time
comin' when every man'll do what he likes, and if he don't, he'll be made to, by crinus!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

The toque of black and white this season is interestingly interpreted in this brilliant evening gown of white tulle and black tulle, worn by Aileen Pringle, M-G-M player. A bertha of black princess lace covers the tight fitting bodice.

Ignorance and Crime

Statistics on crime among the young
in Czechoslovakia, recently made public in Prague, show that in the parts
of the republic where opportunities
for schooling were formerly lacking,
criminality in youth is most prevalent.

THE AMERICAN QUARTET

The American quartet, four singing Pennsylvania railroad boys from Chicago, were the feature entertainment on the Livestock day program.
The quartet is named after the Pennsylvania's famous St. Louis-New York train.

The quartet was booked thru the courtesy of Earl Hilyard, agent for the Pennsylvania railroad.

These Pennsylvania songsters are all regularly employed members of the Pennsylvania's huge personnel numbering 200,000 employees. They were picked from the Chicago forces
of the Pennsylvania and, altho railroading is their business, they can sing equally well.

Members of the Pennsylvania Four
are J. I. Kirsch, first tenor, O. C.
Owens, second tenor, George I. Laing
baritone and R. E. Cook, bass.

On their regular railroad jobs, Mr.
Kirsch is a traveling signal inspector and an expert on automatic train
control, which the Pennsylvania is now installing extensively on its main lines. Mr. Owens is in the telegraph and signal department. Mr.
Laing is in the transportation department and Mr. Cook is a ticket seller
at the Pennsylvania railroad counter
in the consolidated ticket offices in Chicago. Art Johler, piano accompanist, is a tariff expert in the
freight traffic department at Chicago.

Sheep Growers' Handicap

In Australia conditions for sheep
raising are so ideal that shrinkage is light. The Ohio region in this country

AMUSEMENTS

A group of literary hodgepotters and serious minded funmakers have undertaken the task of literally building a house of laughs.

The fortunate poker player who could point to his home as "the house that Jack built" had nothing on Edward Small, who built "McFadden's Flats" for the screen from nothing more weighty than grins, chuckles and uproarious guffaws.

With the aid of a cast of players that is declared to be as nearly a reproduction of the original cast in the stage comedy as present day conditions will permit "McFadden's Flats" known to the amusement world as the funniest of plays for more than a quarter of a century, has been put in films.

And instead of seeing the customary canvas drop that served for the stage production of the comedy, the flats have been erected for the screen story to serve as a professional home for such players as Charlie Murray, Chester Conklin, Edna Murphy, Dorothy Dwan and a host of celebrities who were not permitted to draw a serious breath for several weeks.

The comic classic will be shown at the Met theater Monday.

Roosevelts to Lead Hunting Army to Alaska

Juneau, Alaska.—Turning from Africa to Alaska, from expensive safaris to airplane hops, big game hunters will flock in unaccustomed numbers to the north this summer, reports R. S. Bragaw, president of the Anchorage chamber of commerce, while here. Marcus Daly, noted hunter, Kermit and Theodore Roosevelt, Stewart Edward White and R. B. Patterson are some named by him as already booked for the big bear and moose country. It will be big game hunting de luxe, for a tour company has chartered two airplanes to convey hunters and equipment to the interior.

Each plane of the inclosed cabin type is capable of transporting 900 pounds in addition to pilot and fuel. Use of planes will enable hunters on the Kenai peninsula to make in one hour the trip from Anchorage to the base camp at Birchwood, which otherwise would occupy three days' travel.

THE LAST SAD RITES FOR SAMUEL WESLEY DUNLAP

All That Was Mortal of This Exemplary Citizen Tenderly Laid To Rest In Beautiful Springlawn Cemetery—Life Was Full of Good Deeds And the Results of His Labor And Benefactions Cannot Be Estimated—His Labors Here Are Ended, He Has Heard the Merited "Well Done" And Has Gone To His Eternal Reward.

Solemn and impressive were the last funeral rites for Samuel Wesley Dunlap, one of the county's most prominent and best loved citizens, which was held from the family home on South Court street, Friday afternoon.

He was the oldest child of John and Mary Ann Minear Dunlap and was born in Ross county near Andersonville, April 12, 1841. His ancestors on both sides had been pioneers in Ohio. In early manhood he took up his residence on a farm in Monroe township, this county, and was an active farmer and stock breeder for more than forty years. In 1905, he and his wife moved to the house on the corner of Court and Union streets which has been the family home since. He kept the active management of much of his business until within the last few years.

Mr. Dunlap was active in other lines besides his business. For more than thirty years he was a member of the Monroe township board of education and for most of that time was president of the board. Most of the school houses in that township which are just now being abandoned for the centralized school were built during his membership on the board of education. Mr. Dunlap was actively interested in the formation and development of the Anti-Saloon League and at the time of his death was, as he has been for many years a member of the state headquarters committee.

He was a pioneer financial backer of the temperance and prohibition movement in this state. He was a close friend of Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, Purley Baker, Rev. Ernest H. Cherrington and Wayne B. Wheeler.

He made the first real donation towards the building of the American Issue publishing House at Westerville, which today stands as a monument to the pioneers of the temperance movement.

Mr. Dunlap became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in early life and was active always in the work of the church contributing liberally of his time and money. He was a member of the building committee of the Methodist church both in Williamsport and Circleville. For more than sixty years he was a member of these two churches continuing to serve on the Williamsport board for several years after he moved his residence to Circleville.

In 1912 he was a delegate from the Ohio conference to the Methodist General conference in Minneapolis. He was a member until his death of the Lancaster Campmeeting and Assembly board and until 1925 occupied each year his cottage on the camp ground.

Besides his wife two sons and one daughter survive; John H., and S. Arthur Dunlap of near Williamsport both successful farmers, and Miss Flora Dunlap, who has been at home the past two years, assisting in the care of her aged father. Miss Dunlap, like her parents, was imbued with the love for the temperance work and for the past twenty years was the headworker of the Roadside Settlement House at Des Moines, Iowa and is still a member of the board. Camp Dunlap, a refuge for tired working girls, was named for her. She had been in residence at Kingsley House, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Goodrich House, Cleveland and Hull house, Chicago, Illinois, before taking up settlement work in Iowa. Her services have extended beyond social work, including educational and women suffrage work and she has also taken considerable interest in the federation of Women's clubs.

He leaves one grandson, John H. Dunlap Jr., of Williamsport.

Five ministers attended the funeral services of Mr. Dunlap; Rev. Frank Lin McElfresh, of this city, was in charge; Rev. W. W. Trout of Williamsport, read a hymn, Rev. J. W. Blair, superintendent of Chillicothe, gave the eulogy, Rev. W. S. Fisher, of Kingston, gave the closing prayer, and Rev. D. H. Jemison, of Cincinnati gave the benediction at the graveside.

Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Wilby G. Hyde, Charles M. Dunlap, Charles M. Dunlap Jr., Miss Clara Dunlap, Philip and Robert Dunlap, Judge and Mrs. George B. Bitzer, Miss Florence Bitzer, George Grimes, Mrs. Frank M. Marr, Mrs. French Wingett, Mrs. Will Stitt, David Dunlap, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Hyde, Albert Betts, of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Schein, Mr. and Mrs. George Schein, Miss Lena Schein, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. W. The burial was in the family lot in Springlawn cemetery at Williamsport.

Dahlia Improved

Originally the dahlia is a Mexican weed now transformed by breeders into probably the most varied color and shape wonder of the floral kingdom. From a small, single flower about the size of a cosmos to the present show, cactus and peony types, varying with cultivation and food from four to fourteen inches in diameter have not been a far cry—in the last fifty years nearly all of this bloom transformation has taken place.

All of Them Willing to Testify to That

Robert W. Chambers said in a literary argument at the Century club: "It is claimed that our new school of psycho-analytic novelists are better writers than the novelists of the past, but who is it makes this claim?" Mr. Chambers smiled and went on: "An amateur photographer said one day:

"Here's an article that says the finest work in photography is now being done by amateurs."

"Is this statement true?" asked his companion.

"Of course it's true. If you don't believe it, ask any—"

"Any photographer?"

"No. Any amateur."

STODDARD*Tells of the Danger in Race Hatred.

The hatred for white foreigners now being shown by the Chinese Nationalists is only one manifestation of the growing enmity of the other races for the white, declares Lothrop Stoddard, noted ethnologist and writer, in an article in this week's Liberty. "The Chinese crisis, big as it is," Stoddard contends, "is only part of the larger whole."

"For several centuries," the author explains, "Europe has been mistress of the world. Europeans had gone exploring and conquering and empire-building to the remotest quarters of the earth. Against other peoples the white nations felt themselves invincible. And, for a long time, the non-white peoples reluctantly accepted the situation."

"Then, just ten years before the Great War," the writer continues, "something happened that changed the whole situation. That something was the Russo-Japanese War. That Japanese victory shook white prestige to its foundation. Everywhere the spell of white invincibility was broken, and the peoples of Asia and Africa began to dream of some day doing what the Japanese had done."

"The Chinese Nationalists today are merely trying to do what the Turkish Nationalists actually did do yesterday. And if the Turks and Chinese can get away with it, why can't much the same thing happen to the British in India, to the United States in the Philippines, and to the other Western powers that have colonies or treaty rights or investments in Asia or Africa?"

MELLON GIVES $1,000

Washington, June 3.—(UP.)—Treasury officials today confirmed reports that Secretary Andrew F. Mellon had contributed $1,000 to the families of Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, missing French transatlantic flyers.

The Fashionable Fruit Soup

IN these days of weight-reducing, few people want a heavy soup as a prelude to roast meat or other substantial dishes. What is required is something in the nature of an appetizer. This gave rise to the fruit cocktail, and newer still, the fruit soup.

Peach Soup: Soak three-quarters of a cup of rolled oats over night in a quart of cold water and a pint of juice drained from canned peaches. Stir, strain, and bring to a boil. Season with salt, pepper, and sugar. With this serve saltines that have been sprinkled with grated cheese and left in the oven until the cheese is melted.

Raspberry Soup: Drain the juice from a quart can of red raspberries. Add two cups of water and a pinch of cayenne. Heat, thicken slightly with two tablespoons of arrowroot blended with a little cold water stirred into the mixture until it boils. Take from fire, and add immediately the juice of one lemon. Serve hot or cold. This makes six servings. The berries may be used in tarts or other ways.

Hot Cherry Bouillon: Drain the juice from a quart of canned cherries, add a stick of cinnamon, and boil for three or four minutes. Add clear consommé, season with salt and pepper, and thicken with arrowroot.

Freezing Fruits In the Cans

FROZEN canned fruits are one of the latest favorites for summer salads and desserts. Many fruits are canned individually, and there is one combination can which contains peaches, pineapples, pears, cherries and apricots and is called Fruits for Salad.

The newest wrinkle is to freeze the fruits right in the can. Pack the can in salt and ice, and leave it there at least two hours. Before opening the can, dip it into hot water so that the frozen cylinder of fruit within will slide out easily. Slice this cylinder for individual servings. Place the slices on individual plates, and serve for dessert, garnished with whipped cream and maraschino cherries. Or they taste equally good on lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

Any of the canned fruits may be frozen and served in these ways, and frozen tomatoes, too, make a particularly delicious salad, adding salt and paprika as well as mayonnaise. A modern can opener is an essential for this process. There is one particular type of opener that has a special arrangement for holding the can when you dip it into hot water, so that you can do so without burning your fingers, and is made so that it will remove the whole top of the can without leaving any jagged edges.

Watch The Children Grow

THERE are certain rules and foods that mothers should insist on if their children are to develop equanimity of temperament and strength of body and mind.

Food containing A, B, and C vitamins are necessary for all children, and on this account tomatoes, oranges, pineapple and other fruits and vegetables, and milk, should be given them often. During the adolescent period there is especial need of foods rich in iron. To help the mother plan a diet high in iron and vitamin content, the frequent use of the following foods is suggested: eggs, peas, beans, spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, nuts, raisins, dates, prunes, figs, oatmeal, whole wheat, rye and graham bread, milk, lean beef.

Canned foods are not only a boon but a necessity to all who would add zest and variety to their children's diet; for at any time of year and in any place they are at hand, a steadfast, culinary friend, always reliable, and fully as nutritious as though they had just been gathered in the garden and cooked at home.

Vegetables, fruits, cereals and milk should form the main diet of children. Tomato juice as a cool drink, or combined with the liquid from other canned vegetables is very wholesome because of its wealth of vitamins.

By a judicious use of evaporated milk a meal may be made to yield extra calories. Undiluted, it has all the components of whole milk—it is whole milk!—and with certain other foods, suits the taste of many people much better. For instance, in cocoa, in cream soups, in scalloped and puddings, evaporated milk, undiluted, helps to produce a richer dish than when the ordinary fresh milk is used.

DENIES HE'S QUIT

Mexico City, June 3.—(UP.)—U. S. Ambassador James R. Sheffield announced today on the eve of his departure for the United States that he had not resigned.

Your Engine Is No Exception.

As it grows older it will wear. As it wears it needs a new lubrication diagnosis. Give it an oil of more body. Sinclair provides in the line of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils several different grades of oils to serve the various clearances and degrees of wear encountered in all engines. Why not drive in and consult the Sinclair Recommendation Index, perhaps there is a grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil better for your engine than the one you are now using.

CANDY

Is Complete Food Condensed Energy Supply.

Candy is a strength giving diet that does not make fat unless it is greatly over-eaten. It is a complete food, containing besides sugar, milk, eggs, butter, chocolate, nuts, fruits, molasses, gelatine, and other high power concentrated foods. The sugar in candy which is only a part of its content, is the most concentrated and quickest of heat and energy suppliers. The other elements make it a balanced food.

Candy has the biggest fuel value and practically no bulk. The woman who is reducing can keep up her strength and snap on a little candy that will supply the place of heavy foods and starches that are the fat makers. Candy enables women to eat smaller and lighter meals.

DOHENY

Washington, June 2.—Settlement of the receiver's accounts in the Doheny oil case, under which more than $11,000,000 in cash and Liberty bonds accruing from the sale of oil from the Elk Hills, Calif., naval reserve is turned into the federal treasury, was announced today by Secretary Wilbur.

It is in conformity with the supreme court decision cancelling the Doheny lease to the Elk Hills reserve and returning to the government all money derived from the sale of oil while the property was in the hands of a receiver.

Play on Stripes in Spring Frock

Self-Material Interestingly Converted Into an Effective Trimming.

Most women would prefer a smart frock to a practical one, but if the union of the two can be successfully accomplished, a real service has been performed, says the Woman's Home Companion.

In this frock, the combination of horizontal and vertical stripes is distinctly a spring style trend. By reversing the stripes for front panel, sleeve puffs and neck facing, self-material is converted into effective trimming. At the same time there is a very practical idea underlying this treatment of stripes, for by this method the frock can be cut from three yards of 40-inch material with almost no waste. The skirt portion is in three sections, which of course accounts for the economy in the cutting, but in no way detracts from the style value.

Nor does the economy of material interfere with freedom of movement, for four plaits, two on each side of the skirt, allow plenty of room for comfortable walking.

Even less than three yards of material will make this dress if one-fourth yard of contrasting material is used for the sleeve puffs and neck facing. In this case only two and three-eighths yards of forty-inch material are needed. It will not appear to be obvious makeshift, for contrasting sleeve puffs and neck trimming are frequently features of smart frocks when quantity of material is not a consideration. Organdie or batiste is suitable for this touch of contrast or perhaps a plain material which corresponds to the striped body of the dress.

As illustrated, this frock is made of washable silk showing three tones of rose separated by stripes of black and white.

Cotton material also will be found an excellent medium for this frock.

Paris Designers Have Own Ideas About Colors

So many colors have been launched by the haute couture this spring and so many new shades have been inaugurated by the textile manufacturers that the color question is becoming rather involved. It is not possible to point to one or two shades and say that these are the leading hues of the new season, yet out of the host of colors exploited by Paris it is both interesting and profitable to note the various favorites of the different couturiers. From the appended observations you will gather some idea of the colors evinced by the Paris haute couture.

Lelong, Lanvin, Doucet and other Paris houses continue to emphasize blues of every imaginable tint—ranging from forget-me-not blue to the dark indigo mosaic, the lavender hydrangea blue and the violet periwinkle and the cool sky blue called sissine. Martial et Armand, Paul Poiret and Madeleine Vionnet stress black and white—especially for afternoon wear.

Two or three contrasting colors are now combined in one costume by Parisian designers. For instance, Chantal used alternating vivid hues in bands and panels. He showed a blue cape over a dress of the same shade, trimmed with gray, green and orange. In another model several different colors were stitched together in skirt panels.

Lanvin designed the culotte, or trouser skirt, in a sports costume of pistache-green crepe. The skirt is bloused and divided and very full—the fullness caught over the hips with button fastening at the front.

LADIES' SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Society of Trinity Lutheran congregation was held Wednesday evening, June 1st in the social room of the church. Readings were given by Mrs. H. H. Groce, Mrs. J. R. Noecker and Mrs. Frank Heffner. During the social hour Mrs. Mary Morris, Mrs. Anna Foresman and Mrs. Wm. Fitzpatrick rendered several pleasing vocal selections. A dainty lunch of brick ice cream, cake, mints and coffee was served by the June committee.

The bureau of standards says it is a well-known fact that it is impossible to secure a perfect adjustment of a watch—that is, to eliminate all variations in the watch's rate. It is, in fact, impossible to secure perfection of rate in any respect owing to the interrelation of the various adjustments and to certain factors which prevent the securing of ideal uniformity of rates.

Editor Adam Grant's Daughter

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

OLD Adam Grant, editor and proprietor of one of the great Western newspapers, never wanted it said of him that he gave preference to any member of his own family—in the matter of positions on his staff.

That was why his lovely daughter, Eve, found herself established in a small flat in New York, surrounded by and observing the contents of a hundred and one magazines. Laboriously and very intelligently she was studying the world of fiction from the magazine standpoint.

"When you've mastered the analytical sense and can express it in words that convey your meaning to the readers of my paper—then and only then can you have a position on my staff," Old Adam had told Eve. "If you stay at home here among your friends you won't get anywhere. Hop off to New York for a year and pack that pretty head of yours with first-hand knowledge."

Aunt Clem, her mother's sister, who had come along with her, bored at times into reading the personals in the papers, came across the advertisement that gave her an idea.

It read, "Old magazines wanted by writer." Aunt Clem answered the advertisement and left a huge bundle of magazines to be called for.

Not by the proverbial candle, but beside a well-lighted table, young Avery Weldon carried on his as yet embryonic authorship. But he was working desperately hard to succeed and was reading fiction in the magazines voraciously in order to get a drift with the market.

That was how the huge pile of old magazines happened to be on the floor beside him. He couldn't quite afford to buy all the new ones and his advertisement had brought him many.

Avery scanned the title pages and sat up and rumbled back that smooth gold hair.

"By jove! This is funny!"

Beside the title of the stories were fine marginal notes of criticism, couched in terse but most expressive language.

"Medium. Not bad. Piffle. No point. Wishy-washy. Very good. Why was it given space? Doesn't know men. Needs to study women."

Avery swiftly picked up the publications that had printed his own work and with a somewhat shrinking heart opened the page. Yes, there beside his own story which he had in a moment of stupidity called "Rose of the Desert" he saw the words, "Author in the making, but sadly lacking the human touch."

Avery puffed a bit furiously at his pipe. The nail was hit straight on the head. Avery knew that. A kindly editor had only recently suggested the same thing.

And because a real author must not be strictly conventional or too awfully bound by laws of society, Avery got up, put on his hat and strolled toward the apartment building from whence his magazines had arrived.

The elevator took him up to the fifth floor and there left him. And in another few moments he was standing at an opened door. Aunt Clem herself was out, but Eve had answered his ring.

Avery didn't know what to say now that he was there and with Eve's calm eyes gazing at him he felt that he made rather a sorry story of the incident of buying the old magazines. But Eve was very nice about it and invited him in.

"I didn't even know my aunt had cleared them out," she said as he followed her into a magazine-strewn room.

"I wanted so desperately to chat with the critic who had jotted those remarks down that I chanced coming here," he said, boyishly. "My dad has given me a year to make good in story writing, bless him," he went on, seeing the kindling interest in Eve's eyes, "and I believe if you'd be so good as to help me, with criticism I could win out."

"I know you could," was Eve's unexpected reply. "I see it somewhere in the deep places of your stories—I would love to help you."

She told him then about her own dad and who he was and all about home, and Avery laughed. Then he pulled a frayed letter from his pocket—a letter written some six months before, and handed it to her.

"Avery, my boy," it ran, "while you're messing about with your writing, just take time to look up Old Adam Grant's daughter. She's gone to New York to make good, too. Fine girl, too, from what her dad says, but then perhaps I say the same to Grant, about my boy—" Eve read no further until she had cast accusing eyes at Avery.

"I like that! Six whole months and you've never even taken the trouble—"

"And darn glad I am, too," said Avery. "If I knew you all this time I doubt if a single story would have left the typewriter—I should have been bumped into a dream so glorious I—oh, I say, Eve, when do we go back home—I'm longing for the time when I can get down to hard work and make use of all this study to do the big work that only you can help me with."

Aunt Clem came in and smiled—she knew a thing or two.

ABORIGINE SHORN OF FANTASTIC MYTH

Liked Fine Raiment and Could Fight.

Columbus, Ohio.—The mound-building aborigine of America, stripped of the fantastic myths which have hovered above him, is revealed as a savage who loved fine raiment and ornamentation, paid great attention to ceremonials, trafficked with distant tribes, and could fight when he had to.

This appraisal has been reached by the Ohio State Archeological and Historical society after more than two decades of exploration in the great mounds of earth and stone built as ceremonial sites, and found in their greatest completeness in Ohio.

A patient striving for beauty is depicted in the remains of mound-building civilization uncovered in recent months in the Seip mound, scene of "The Great Pearl Burial of Ohio." In this primitive but recent regal tomb of the red man were unearthed five kinds of cloth, leather finely tanned and dressed, and thousands upon thousands of pearls.

Within the mound, 250 feet long, 150 feet wide and 27 feet high, explorers found under a layer of cobblestones an interior mound built of puddled loam, inclosing four burial cribs of logs, 16 feet square.

Two men, two women and two children were the skeletal occupants of the tomb, the men resting on copper breastplates. Around them were myriads of fresh water mussel pearls, some the size of small seeds and others big as hazelnuts. All had been worn as necklaces, armlets, anklets or stomachers.

Beneath the copper plates was disclosed evidence of the splendid burial robes on which the dead were laid. They were beautifully woven, in conventional designs with concentric circles and curving bands, and colored with vegetable dyes in red, maroon, orange, yellow and black. In the moment of their finding, archeology's estimate of mound builder culture was lifted to a new plane.

Five pipes carved from steatite, a dense dark stone flecked with crystal, were found—all highly polished, one weighing more than seven pounds. They were ceremonial council pipes, two carved to resemble dogs and others fashioned after an owl, a bear and a whippoorwill.

Delving again into the mound this summer, President Arthur C. Johnson, Sr., and the society, and H. C. Shetrone, curator of its museum, expect to find new treasures at its heart. Even if the mound yields nothing more, its exploration has added a fascinating chapter to the century-long search into the unwritten history of America's ancient peoples.

INSECT FOES OF MAN ARE VANISHING, SAYS SCIENTIST

Texas Entomologist Declares That Bugs Will Never Gain Upper Hand Over Human Race.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Belief that insects may gain the upper hand over mankind was termed far out of the realm of probability by R. R. Reppert, entomologist from Texas A. and M. college.

"Every insect that has threatened mankind has been exterminated or brought under control," Reppert said. "It is at times when insects are causing huge financial damage that some persons think they are getting the upper hand."

"For example, yellow fever, caused by the bite of a mosquito, is now only a memory, whereas a few decades ago it caused thousands of deaths. Bubonic plague, spread largely by the bite of fleas that had been on infected rats, also is almost unheard of."

"The method by which the yellow fever mosquito was brought under control was the destroying of his breeding places and larvae. As the flea obviously could not be controlled, bubonic plague was eliminated by destroying rats, mice, ground squirrels and other small animals infected with it."

Some bugs are friends of the human race in that they prey on other bugs and insects that are enemies of man in destroying his crops, Reppert said. This is one of the most important methods used by the United States bureau of entomology in fighting insect pests.

"Perhaps man's greatest friend among bugs and insects is the one commonly known as the ladybug," Reppert said. "By the way, in speaking of the ladybug, don't use the pronoun 'she,' because the bug is not a feminine product as the name sounds. The ladybug lives on many kinds of insects that eat and destroy various farm crops."

"These bugs are imported into pest-infected areas and it is not long until the pest is gone. A few years ago some ladybugs were imported in south Texas and they made such quick work of the pests that they soon starved to death."

"In both California and Florida the state governments recognize the ladybug's value and take steps to propagate it."

Spraying against pests, especially the boll weevil and insects that attack trees, has served to check them, Reppert said, but the most satisfactory method is to find the insect that is their natural enemy and make a counter-attack.

STORM TOLL IS 100 KILLED PROPERTY LOSS FIVE MILLION

Desolation In Element's Wake—Thousands Homeless In the Mountain Districts—List of Dead To Grow Upon Resumption of Communication With Isolated Communities—Relief Efforts Underway In Louisville and Lexington—Frame Work of Paducah Hotel Levelled.

The storm disaster in eastern Kentucky has assumed major proportions and has been augmented by resultant floods, a relief committee was told Friday at a conference at Louisville, Kentucky.

More than 100 lives have been lost, thousands are homeless and property damage is estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Appalling desolation lies in the wake of the cloudbursts of Sunday and Monday. The toll of human life will be increased when mountain valley villages, which have been cut off from communication with the outside world, are heard from.

There are more than 30 dead in Perry county, with property damage of $2,000,000 in Hazard alone.

Coal operators in the Big Sandy valley alone were said to face a loss of $500,000 thru inability to send coal to Great Lakes ports because of washout.

The bridge connecting Hazard proper with the railroad station and wholesale district across the river has been swept away. Passengers entering Hazard are forced to cross the river by ferry.

"The county is bankrupt!" says Sheriff William Cornett. "It is undoubtedly the worst catastrophe Kentucky has ever known."

Hazard virtually has been without drinking water since Sunday, and there is fear of disease unless immediate steps of prevention are taken. The food situation apparently is not serious.

A car loaded with food supplies for flood sufferers left Hazard Friday and another train was being load Friday night.

Dr. A. T. McCormick, secretary of the state board of health, has been designated chairman of the Kentucky district relief committee. He announced Friday that a preliminary survey indicated the disaster was of major proportions, approximately 125,000 persons being in the affected area and 75,000 others in adjacent territory.

A finance committee appealed for a relief fund of $100,000, $50,000 of which was to be raised in Louisville alone. Latest compilations indicated that 44 of the dead had been identified.

A drive for funds to aid the thousands in the Hazard section who have been made homeless and hungry by storms, was launched Friday at board of commerce headquarters at Lexington Kentucky.

workers and the public at large attended the meeting, at which the gravity of the situation at Hazard and adjacent towns was related.

Severe damage was done to property by a storm that swept Paducah and western Kentucky early Friday. Hail fell in nearly all counties of the Purchase, according to telephone reports. The wind unroofed a number of barns and buildings in the rural districts and did damage in Paducah.

The heaviest damage was the destruction of the six story steel frame work of the Ritz hotel. The entire steel structure, which workmen were preparing to rivet, was blown down. Steel beams were blown against a filling station of the Gulf Refining company, damaging it.

Brick work on the new hotel was to have been started this week. The damage probably will exceed $20,000.

Fellow Ministers at Peru, Indiana, Regret Loss of Rev. Crosswhite.

Rev. A. G. Crosswhite, the new pastor of the Church of the Brethren, in this city, came here from Peru, Indiana, and was vice president of the Peru Ministerial association, which organization adopted the following resolution:

"The members of the Peru Ministerial association deeply regret that the Rev. A. G. Crosswhite, pastor of the Church of the Brethren of our city, is soon to leave us for another field of labor.

"His seven years of faithful service in the local pastorate have been fruitful along all lines and have been marked with the forward look and advance never known to the local church before. The stock of whisky is stored in cabinets behind glass doors, in the sheriff's office and all that the place lacks is a bar and mirror to make it look like a goodness to goodness saloon of pre Volstead days. The owner of the car and whisky skipped out.

Silver Dollar Once Made Five Quarters

Annapolis, Md.—Old records show that silver tokens for making change were first used in this country in Annapolis. With the consent of the government I. Chalmers, an Annapolis gold and silversmith, in 1783 turned out by hand sixpence, threepence and shilling coins to combat sharpers who, after depreciation of paper money, began to cut five "quarters" out of silver Spanish dollars.

Because of lack of change the cutting of Spanish dollars into halves and fourths was condoned, and even necessary, until it was discovered that expert cutters were reaping a small fortune. When expertly cut the fifths could be discerned from quarters only by keen eyesight or by weighing. Chalmers produced new standard coins and took the short pieces in exchange until the fraud was stopped.

There's one good thing about having rheumatism, you don't need to buy a barometer to tell when there's going to be change in the weather.

Divorce is the gateway thru which men and women hope to pass into greener pastures and more beautiful fields.

ROTARIANS

Hosts To Senior Boys of Circleville High School.

When the Rotary club entertained the members of the senior class of the Circleville High School at their regular noon-day luncheon at the Boggs Hotel yesterday, Prof. Hastings Eells, of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, brought a message to the youths that will give them all something to think of during the summer vacation.

"Father, Son and College," was the subject of the talk which Prof. Eells delivered to his audience which was composed of twenty-seven youths, members of the Senior class, Supt. Eagleson, Prof. Cain and Prof. Daley of the faculty and their hosts. He spoke to them about entering college as that is the foremost thought in the mind of every boy of today who finishes high school. This is as it should be, according to Prof. Eells, as the every day necessities of this age practically demand at least a few years of college. There are many lines of endeavor today that demand it, that a few years ago admitted persons without this accomplishment. Prof. Eells told the boys that the ones who get the most out of their college course are those who make their own way through with only a little help from their parents. The first year, according to him, is the hardest and if assistance is obtained at this time the worthwhile youth can easily make his own way afterward.

The talk was very interesting and instructive and came at a time when it made the greatest impression on the boys. This is the second affair of this kind at which the Rotarians have been the hosts and the boys apparently enjoyed the affair thoroughly.

ANDREWS RAPPED

Influenced By Brewery Interests Is Charge of Former Subordinate.

New York, June 2.—(UP).—Pressure exerted by brewery interests was blamed by Ira L. Reeves, former prohibition administrator for New Jersey, today for his relief from duty by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews.

The way he was relieved was termed by Reeves in a letter to Andrews "the most contemptible which could be conceived." He submitted his resignation April 28, but agreed not to press it. Again on May 6, he resigned, and on May 23, Andrews accepted his withdrawal. Reeves was succeeded the next day by James E. Jones.

Hay Equipment and Practices
Certain Methods Often Employed When Others Would Be Superior.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Many different methods and practices of putting up hay are followed by growers in large hay-producing sections. Some growers follow certain practices because of the size of the haying operations, some because of climatic conditions, some because of the kind of hay or the quality desired. Through continuous use certain practices are often employed when others would be superior. Many hay growers are getting satisfactory results with the methods they now use, but there are others who could lower their costs by changing, according to L. A. Reynoldson, economist, and C. D. Kinsman, agricultural engineer of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Have Equipment Ready.
Putting up hay is an operation that, even under the most favorable conditions, requires more constant attention and efficient handling than most other farm operations. Because of the comparatively short season, delays are costly. It is essential, therefore, that the equipment be in good shape before haying begins and that sufficient repair parts are always on hand.
The best equipment to use for haying varies according to the kind of hay, field per acre, quality of hay desired, topography of the hay land, quantity produced each year and the distance hay is hauled from field to stacks.

Different Mower Types.
Some of the different types and sizes of mowers, sulky rakes, sweep rakes and stackers used by hay growers in certain sections are better adapted to conditions in other sections than those now in use there. Many of the items of special equipment and some of the labor-saving devices and methods used by different men could be employed with profit by others.

In Idaho a crew of 14 men will stack 80 to 90 tons of alfalfa daily, using slips and a Mormon derrick. This hay brings a premium of 10 to 20 per cent over that put up by other methods. In Colorado a seven-man crew stacks only 30 tons with a similar outfit. In Montana, a five-man crew stacks 30 to 40 tons with an overshot stacker and sweep rakes.

A crew of eight men in Colorado using a slide stacker and home-made sweep rakes will stack about 65 tons of wild hay per day. In Nebraska, a four-man crew using an overshot stacker with a backboard and front-board will put up 32 tons. Without the latter device, another man would be necessary.

A crew of six men using a slide stacker and sweep rakes stacks 60 tons of irrigated timothy and alsike hay per day.

Farmers who feed cattle should be interested in a method of handling hay in Nebraska whereby four to five tons can be taken from the stack, put on a wagon and pitched off in the feed lot in about one hour.

This and other information is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1526-F, "Effective Haying Equipment and Practices," a copy of which may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Pasture Without Grain Is Not Enough for Pigs
That it is not profitable nor advisable to attempt to grow pigs on pasture without grain is shown by some work done at the Kentucky station a few years ago. Some pigs weighing 63 pounds each were turned on rye pasture on March 19 and kept there for 42 days, no grain being fed. They did not maintain their weight, in fact they lost 5 pounds during the time. Some other pigs weighing 82 pounds each were turned on clover and bluegrass pasture on May 13. On July 4 these pigs averaged 90 pounds each, having gained only 8 pounds in 53 days.

Agricultural Notes
Legume bacteria work for nothing.
Every farm should have some means of extinguishing fires.
Doves are important weed destroyers, it is said. One dove was found to eat 9,200 weed seeds at a single meal.
Only ten minutes of actual human labor is required to produce a bushel of wheat.
Crops grown on the farm or locally usually form the most economical feeding ration.
When cutting soy beans for hay, cut when the beans are formed in one-third of the pods.
Rape is a garden crop, or should be. Many people do not know it, but out of rape can be made one of the best salads, or "greens," known.
After grain is cut and stacked or threshed the stubble field furnishes a cheap pasture for sheep. Rape sown in the stubblefield will also make excellent sheep pasture.

BUILDING & LOAN
Association District Meeting To Be Held at Ironton, Monday Evening, June 6th.

Officials from 47 building and loan companies in 14 southern Ohio counties, comprising District No. 5, of the Ohio Building Association League, will hold their annual spring meeting at Ironton, Monday evening, June 6th. HOLDS INTEREST IS OWED STATE

Several thousand dollars is owed the State of Ohio through delays in sending to the state treasurer funds held in local banks in the name of the secretary of state while the office was held by Thad H. Brown, according to an opinion rendered Wednesday by Attorney General Edward Turner to Joseph T. Tracy, state auditor.

The exact amount of money involved has not been determined, but it is indicated it will be in excess of $35,000, for which Brown and his bondsmen and the various banks are responsible, the opinion said. The money was received from sale of automobile license tags.

There are probably 300 banks scattered throughout the state involved in the case. The question to be determined is how much the state lost in interest through having the money in the banks at two per cent when, if it had been turned into the treasury promptly, it might have earned four per cent.

The amount of money the banks will be asked for depends upon how much profit they made through these delayed deposits, and this is highly problematical. The state auditor's office plans to compute the figure and then certify the amounts to the attorney general for whatever action he may see fit to take.—Columbus Citizen.

Free Sun Bath Allowed*By Permeable Clothing

London.—Sunlight treatment will be presently available, not only artificially and inexpensively, but will be free for all if the claim put forth by Prof. A. M. Low proves justified. This British scientist claims to have devised a method by which clothing without change of appearance or durability becomes permeable to ultra violet rays.

Clothes from the treated material would mean health for all men and women, the scientist declares. His claimed discovery of a free sun bath treatment while you walk was made by chance in the course of an X-ray experiment.

MANLESS TRACTOR AMAZES FARMERS

Plows Without Guidance in Exhibition Test.

Lincoln, Neb.—A machine that plows a field without human guidance was given a demonstration at the agricultural college farm recently.

Groups of interested persons watched the machine as it went about alone, with no hand at the wheel, guided solely by an arm carrying a shoe gliding along the furrow made on the previous round. To prepare a field for this operation requires that the first furrow be made under guidance and that the corners be rounded off by the same means to permit the machine to plow around the field without stopping.

A safety pilot, the invention of Frank L. Zybach, a young farmer, guided the plow around this field without stopping, except when for demonstration purposes the guide was lifted out of the furrow. Then the machine automatically came to rest.

A simple device costing from $35 to $50 which can be attached to any tractor can be made to guide a gang of plows day and night, 22 hours out of 24 if necessary, with only the casual attention of the farmer. Theoretically plowing can go on all day and all night. It only requires two hours out of the 24 to water and fuel and care for the engine. Even the experimental machines have been left alone to plow, while the farmer goes to town and remains away for hours.

THE AMERICAN QUARTET

The American quartet, four singing Pennsylvania railroad boys from Chicago, were the feature entertainment on the Livestock day program. The quartet is named after the Pennsylvania's famous St. Louis-New York train.

The quartet was booked thru the courtesy of Earl Hilyard, agent for the Pennsylvania railroad.

These Pennsylvania songsters are all regularly employed members of the Pennsylvania's huge personnel numbering 200,000 employees. They were picked from the Chicago forces of the Pennsylvania and, altho railroading is their business, they can sing equally well.

Members of the Pennsylvania Four are J. I. Kirsch, first tenor, O. C. Owens, second tenor, George I. Laing baritone and R. E. Cook, bass.

On their regular railroad jobs, Mr. Kirsch is a traveling signal inspector and an expert on automatic train control, which the Pennsylvania is now installing extensively on its main lines. Mr. Owens is in the telegraph and signal department. Mr. Laing is in the transportation department and Mr. Cook is a ticket seller at the Pennsylvania railroad counter in the consolidated ticket offices in Chicago. Art Johler, piano accompanist, is a tariff expert in the freight traffic department at Chicago.

AMUSEMENTS

A group of literary hodgepotters and serious minded funmakers have undertaken the task of literally building a house of laughs.

The fortunate poker player who could point to his home as "the house that Jack built" had nothing on Edward Small, who built "McFadden's Flats" for the screen from nothing more weighty than grins, chuckles and uproarious guffaws.

With the aid of a cast of players that is declared to be as nearly a reproduction of the original cast in the stage comedy as present day conditions will permit "McFadden's Flats" known to the amusement world as the funniest of plays for more than a quarter of a century, has been put in films.

And instead of seeing the customary canvas drop that served for the stage production of the comedy, the flats have been erected for the screen story to serve as a professional home for such players as Charlie Murray, Chester Conklin, Edna Murphy, Dorothy Dwan and a host of celebrities who were not permitted to draw a serious breath for several weeks.

The comic classic will be shown at the Met theater Monday.

Hunting Army to Alaska

Juneau, Alaska.—Turning from Africa to Alaska, from expensive safaris to airplane hops, big game hunters will flock in unaccustomed numbers to the north this summer, reports R. S. Bragaw, president of the Anchorage chamber of commerce, while here.

Marcus Daly, noted hunter, Kermit and Theodore Roosevelt, Stewart Edward White and R. B. Patterson are some named by him as already booked for the big bear and moose country. It will be big game hunting de luxe, for a tour company has chartered two airplanes to convey hunters and equipment to the interior.

Each plane of the inclosed cabin type is capable of transporting 900 pounds in addition to pilot and fuel. Use of planes will enable hunters on the Kenai peninsula to make in one hour the trip from Anchorage to the base camp at Birchwood, which otherwise would occupy three days' travel.

THE LAST SAD RITES FOR SAMUEL WESLEY DUNLAP

All That Was Mortal of This Exemplary Citizen Tenderly Laid To Rest In Beautiful Springlawn Cemetery—Life Was Full of Good Deeds And the Results of His Labor And Benefactions Cannot Be Estimated—His Labors Here Are Ended, He Has Heard the Merited "Well Done" And Has Gone To His Eternal Reward.

Solemn and impressive were the last funeral rites for Samuel Wesley Dunlap, one of the county's most prominent and best loved citizens, which was held from the family home on South Court street, Friday afternoon.

He was the oldest child of John and Mary Ann Minear Dunlap and was born in Ross county near Andersonville, April 12, 1841. His ancestors on both sides had been pioneers in Ohio. In early manhood he took up his residence on a farm in Monroe township, this county, and was an active farmer and stock breeder for more than forty years. In 1905, he and his wife moved to the house on the corner of Court and Union streets which has been the family home since. He kept the active management of much of his business until within the last few years.

Mr. Dunlap was active in other lines besides his business. For more than thirty years he was a member of the Monroe township board of education and for most of that time was president of the board. Most of the school houses in that township which are just now being abandoned for the centralized school were built during his membership on the board of education. Mr. Dunlap was actively interested in the formation and development of the Anti-Saloon League and at the time of his death was, as he has been for many years a member of the state headquarters committee.

He was a pioneer financial backer of the temperance and prohibition movement in this state. He was a close friend of Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, Purley Baker, Rev. Ernest H. Cherrington and Wayne B. Wheeler.

He made the first real donation towards the building of the American Issue publishing House at Westernville, which today stands as a monument to the pioneers of the temperance movement.

Mr. Dunlap became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in early life and was active always in the work of the church contributing liberally of his time and money. He was a member of the building committee of the Methodist church both in Williamsport and Circleville. For more than sixty years he was a member of these two churches continuing to serve on the Williamsport board for several years after he moved his residence to Circleville.

In 1912 he was a delegate from the Ohio conference to the Methodist General conference in Minneapolis. He was a member until his death of the Lancaster Campmeeting and Assembly board and until 1925 occupied each year his cottage on the camp ground.

Besides his wife two sons and one daughter survive; John H., and S. Arthur Dunlap of near Williamsport both successful farmers, and Miss Flora Dunlap, who has been at home the past two years, assisting in the care of her aged father. Miss Dunlap, like her parents, was imbued with the love for the temperance work and for the past twenty years was the headworker of the Roadside Settlement House at Des Moines, Iowa and is still a member of the board. Camp Dunlap, a refuge for tired working girls, was named for her. She had been in residence at Kingsley House, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Goodrich House, Cleveland and Hull house, Chicago, Illinois, before taking up settlement work in Iowa. Her services have extended beyond social work, including educational and women suffrage work and she has also taken considerable interest in the federation of Women's clubs.

He leaves one grandson, John H. Dunlap Jr., of Williamsport.

Five ministers attended the funeral services of Mr. Dunlap; Rev. Franklin McElfresh, of this city, was in charge; Rev. W. W. Trout of Williamsport, read a hymn, Rev. J. W. Blair, superintendent of Chillicothe, gave the eulogy, Rev. W. S. Fisher, of Kingston, gave the closing prayer, and Rev. D. H. Jemison, of Cincinnati gave the benediction at the graveside.

Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Wilby G. Hyde, Charles M. Dunlap, Charles M. Dunlap Jr., Miss Clara Dunlap, Philip and Robert Dunlap, Judge and Mrs. George B. Bitzer, Miss Florence Bitzer, George Grimes, Mrs. Frank M. Marr, Mrs. French Wingett, Mrs. Will Stitt, David Dunlap, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Hyde, Albert Betts, of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Schein, Mr. and Mrs. George Schein, Miss Lena Schein, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith William Imler and William Gillie, of Williamsport.

The burial was in the family lot in Springlawn cemetery at Williamsport.

Dahlia Improved

Originally the dahlia is a Mexican weed now transformed by breeders into probably the most varied color and shape wonder of the floral kingdom. From a small, single flower about the size of a cosmos to the present show, cactus and peony types, varying with cultivation and food from four to fourteen inches in diameter have not been a far cry—in the last fifty years nearly all of this bloom transformation has taken place.

All of Them Willing

to Testify to That

Robert W. Chambers said in a literary argument at the Century club:

"It is claimed that our new school of psycho-analytic novelists are better writers than the novelists of the past, but who is it makes this claim?"

Mr. Chambers smiled and went on: "An amateur photographer said one day:

"Here's an article that says the finest work in photography is now being done by amateurs."

"Is this statement true?" asked his companion.

"Of course it's true. If you don't believe it, ask any—"

"Any photographer?"

"No. Any amateur."

STODDARD

Tells of the Danger In Race Hatred.

The hatred for white foreigners now being shown by the Chinese Nationalists is only one manifestation of the growing enmity of the other races for the white, declares Lothrop Stoddard, noted ethnologist and writer, in an article in this week's Liberty. "The Chinese crisis, big as it is," Stoddard contends, "is only part of the larger whole."

"For several centuries," the author explains, "Europe has been mistress of the world. Europeans had gone exploring and conquering and empire-building to the remotest quarters of the earth. Against other peoples the white nations felt themselves invincible. And, for a long time, the non-white peoples reluctantly accepted the situation."

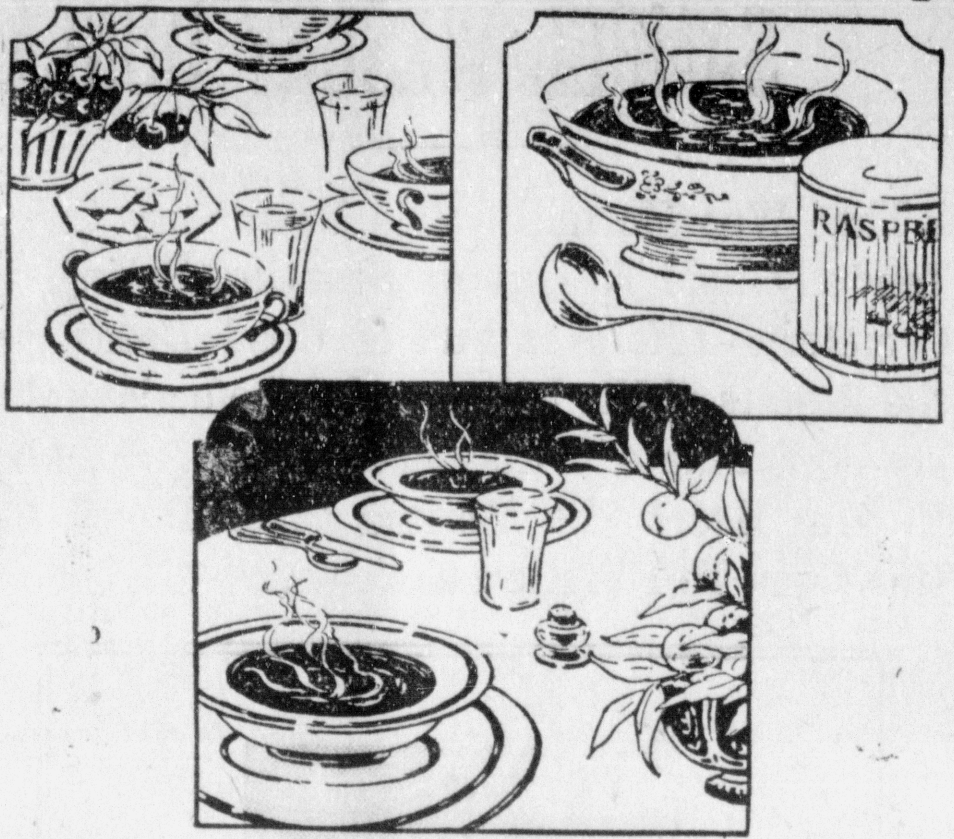

"Then, just ten years before the Great War," the writer continues, "something happened that changed the whole situation. That something was the Russo-Japanese War. That Japanese victory shook white prestige to its foundation. Everywhere the spell of white invincibility was broken, and the peoples of Asia and Africa began to dream of some day doing what the Japanese had done."

"The Chinese Nationalists today are merely trying to do what the Turkish Nationalists actually did do yesterday. And if the Turks and Chinese can get away with it, why can't much the same thing happen to the British in India, to the United States in the Philippines, and to the other Western powers that have colonies or treaty rights or investments in Asia or Africa?"

MELLON GIVES $1,000

The Fashionable Fruit Soup

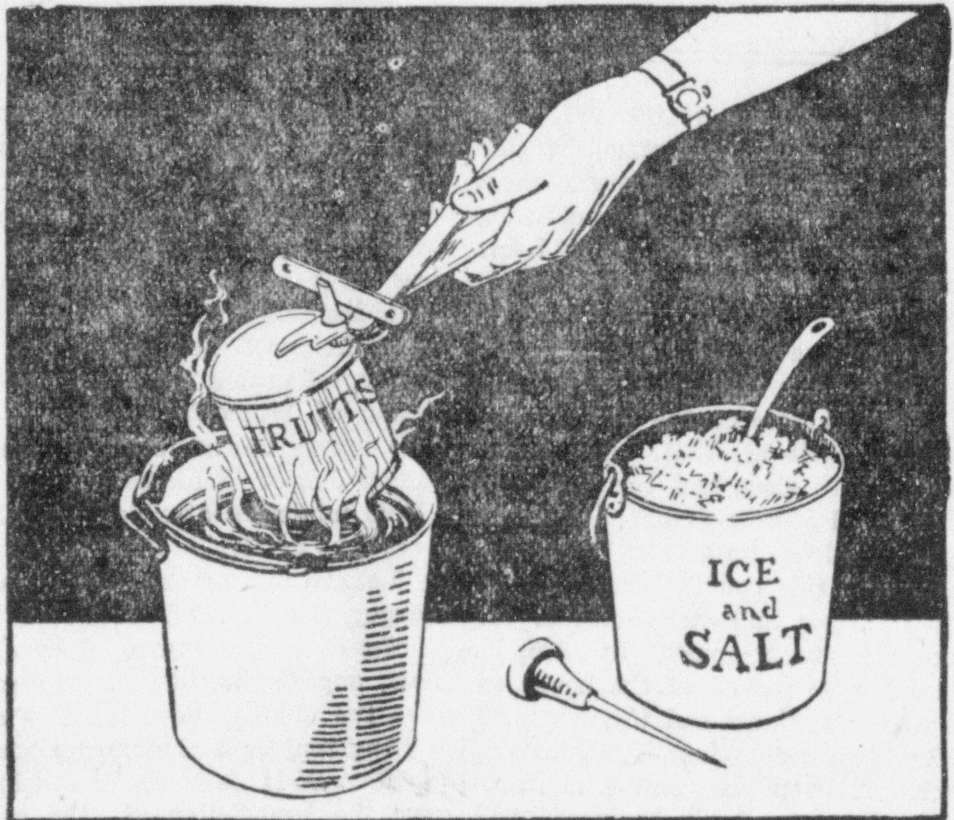

IN these days of weight-reducing, few people want a heavy soup as a prelude to roast meat or other substantial dishes. What is required is something in the nature of an appetizer. This gave rise to the fruit cocktail, and newer still, the fruit soup.

Peach Soup: Soak three-quarters of a cup of rolled oats over night in a quart of cold water and a pint of juice drained from canned peaches. Stir, strain, and bring to a boil. Season with salt, pepper, and sugar. With this serve saltines that have been sprinkled with grated cheese and left in the oven until the cheese is melted.

Raspberry Soup: Drain the juice from a quart can of red raspberries. Add two cups of water and a pinch of cayenne. Heat, thicken slightly with two tablespoons of arrowroot blended with a little cold water stirred into the mixture until it boils. Take from fire, and add immediately the juice of one lemon. Serve hot or cold. This makes six servings. The berries may be used in tarts or other ways.

Hot Cherry Bouillon: Drain the juice from a quart of canned cherries, add a stick of cinnamon, and boil for three or four minutes. Add clear consommé, season with salt and pepper, and thicken with arrowroot.

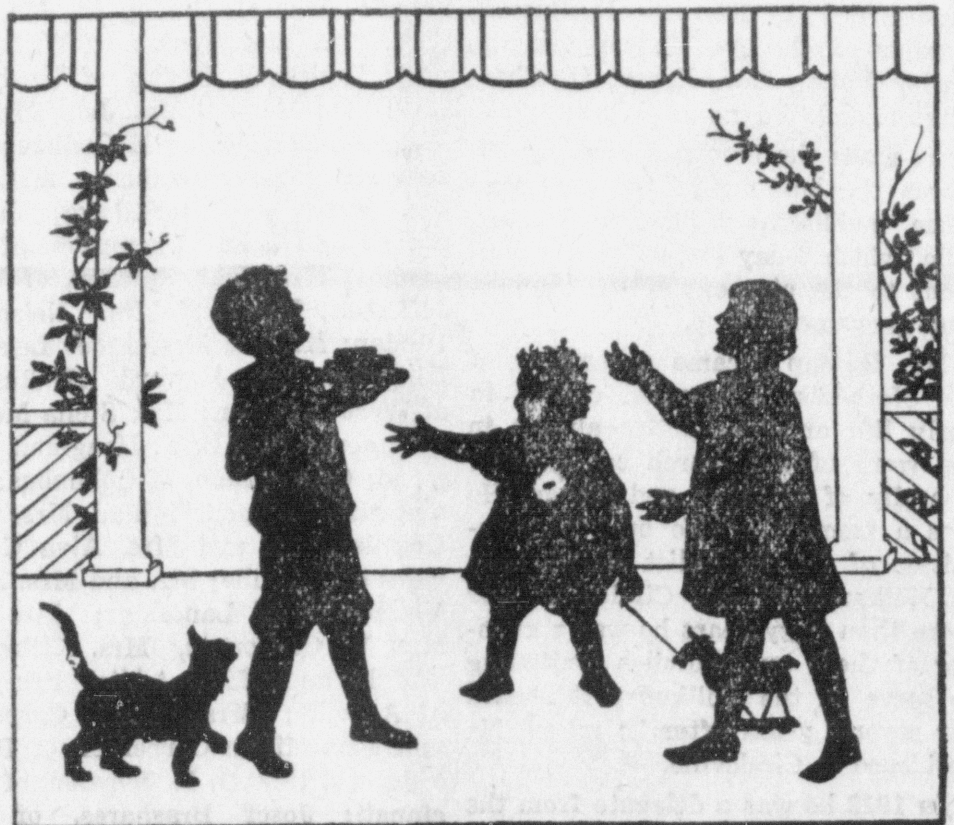

Freezing Fruits In the Cans

FROZEN canned fruits are one of the latest favorites for summer salads and desserts. Many fruits are canned individually, and there is one combination can which contains peaches, pineapples, pears, cherries and apricots and is called Fruits for Salad.

The newest wrinkle is to freeze the fruits right in the can. Pack the can in salt and ice, and leave it there at least two hours. Before opening the can, dip it into hot water so that the frozen cylinder of fruit within will slide out easily. Slice this cylinder for individual servings. Place the slices on individual plates, and serve for dessert, garnished with whipped cream and maraschino cherries. Or they taste equally good on lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

Any of the canned fruits may be frozen and served in these ways, and frozen tomatoes, too, make a particularly delicious salad, adding salt and paprika as well as mayonnaise. A modern can opener is an essential for this process. There is one particular type of opener that has a special arrangement for holding the can when you dip it into hot water, so that you can do so without burning your fingers, and is made so that it will remove the whole top of the can without leaving any jagged edges.

Watch The Children Grow

THERE are certain rules and foods that mothers should insist on if their children are to develop equanimity of temperament and strength of body and mind.

Food containing A, B, and C vitamins are necessary for all children, and on this account tomatoes, oranges, pineapple and other fruits and vegetables, and milk, should be given them often. During the adolescent period there is especial need of foods rich in iron. To help the mother plan a diet high in iron and vitamin content, the frequent use of the following foods is suggested: eggs, peas, beans, spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, nuts, raisins, dates, prunes, figs, oatmeal, whole wheat, rye and graham bread, milk, lean beef.

Canned foods are not only a boon but a necessity to all who would add zest and variety to their children's diet; for at any time of year and in any place they are at hand, a steadfast, culinary friend, always reliable, and fully as nutritious as though they had just been gathered in the garden and cooked at home.

Vegetables, fruits, cereals and milk should form the main diet of children. Tomato juice as a cool drink, or combined with the liquid from other canned vegetables is very wholesome because of its wealth of vitamins.

By a judicious use of evaporated milk a meal may be made to yield extra calories. Undiluted, it has all the components of whole milk—it is whole milk!—and with certain other foods, suits the taste of many people much better. For instance, in cocoa, in cream soups, in scallops and puddings, evaporated milk, undiluted, helps to produce a richer dish than when the ordinary fresh milk is used.

CANDY

Is Complete Food Condensed Energy Supply.

Candy is a strength giving diet that does not make fat unless it is greatly over-eaten. It is a complete food, containing besides sugar, milk, eggs, butter, chocolate, nuts, fruits, molasses, gelatine, and other high power concentrated foods. The sugar in candy which is only a part of its content, is the most concentrated and quickest of heat and energy suppliers. The other elements make it a balanced food.

Candy has the biggest fuel value and practically no bulk. The woman who is reducing can keep up her strength and snap on a little candy that will supply the place of heavy foods and starches that are the fat makers. Candy enables women to eat smaller and lighter meals.

Play on Stripes in Spring Frock

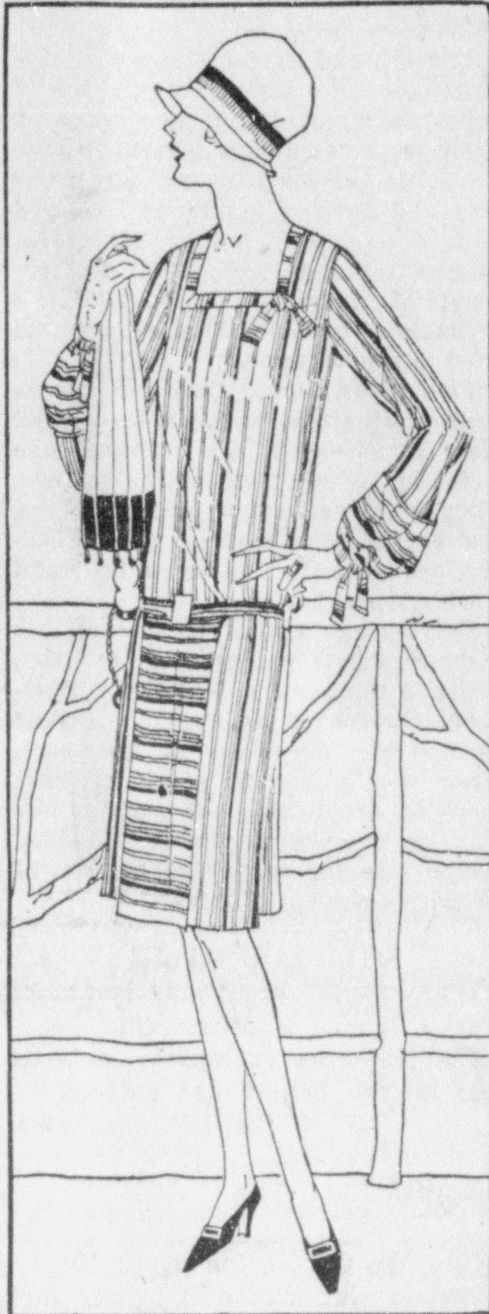

Self-Material Interestingly Converted Into an Effective Trimming.

Most women would prefer a smart frock to a practical one, but if the union of the two can be successfully accomplished, a real service has been performed, says the Woman's Home Companion.

In this frock, the combination of horizontal and vertical stripes is distinctly a spring style trend. By reversing the stripes for front panel, sleeve puffs and neck facing, self-material is converted into effective trimming. At the same time there is a very practical idea underlying this treatment of stripes, for by this method the frock can be cut from three yards of 40-inch material with almost no waste. The skirt portion is in three sections, which of course accounts for the economy in the cutting, but in no way detracts from the style value.

Nor does the economy of material interfere with freedom of movement, for four plaits, two on each side of the skirt, allow plenty of room for comfortable walking.

Even less than three yards of material will make this dress if one-fourth yard of contrasting material is used for the sleeve puffs and neck facing. In this case only two and three-eighths yards of forty-inch material are needed. It will not appear to be obvious makeshift, for contrasting sleeve puffs and neck trimming are frequently features of smart frocks when quantity of material is not a consideration. Organdie or batiste is suitable for this touch of contrast or perhaps a plain material which corresponds to the striped body of the dress.

As illustrated, this frock is made of washable silk showing three tones of rose separated by stripes of black and white.

Cotton material also will be found an excellent medium for this frock.

Paris Designers Have Own Ideas About Colors

So many colors have been launched by the haute couture this spring and so many new shades have been inaugurated by the textile manufacturers that the color question is becoming rather involved. It is not possible to point to one or two shades and say that these are the leading hues of the new season, yet out of the host of colors exploited by Paris it is both interesting and profitable to note the various favorites of the different couturiers. From the appended observations you will gather some idea of the colors evinced by the Paris haute couture.

Lelong, Lanvin, Doucet and other Paris houses continue to emphasize blues of every imaginable tint—ranging from forget-me-not blue to the dark indigo mosaic, the lavender hydrangea blue and the violet periwinkle and the cool sky blue called siltine. Martial et Armand, Paul Poiret and Madeleine Vionnet stress black and white—especially for afternoon wear.

Two or three contrasting colors are now combined in one costume by Parisian designers. For instance, Chantal used alternating vivid hues in bands and panels. He showed a blue cape over a dress of the same shade, trimmed with gray, green and orange. In another model several different colors were stitched together in skirt panels.

Lanvin designed the culotte, or trouser skirt, in a sports costume of pistache-green crepe. The skirt is bloused and divided and very full—the fullness caught over the hips with button fastening at the front.

LADIES' SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Society of Trinity Lutheran congregation was held Wednesday evening, June 1st in the social room of the church. Readings were given by Mrs. H. H. Groce, Mrs. J. R. Noecker and Mrs. Frank Heffner. During the social hour Mrs. Mary Morris, Mrs. Anna Foresman and Mrs. Wm. Fitzpatrick rendered several pleasing vocal selections. A dainty lunch of brick ice cream, cake, mints and coffee was served by the June committee.

We Carry a Line—For Good Reasons

We carry five different grades of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils. For your car—one of these five is better than the other four. It depends on the condition of your engine—the length of service—the degree of wear. The Sinclair Recommendation Index determines just the grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil your car should have today.

Editor Adam Grant's Daughter

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

OLD Adam Grant, editor and proprietor of one of the great Western newspapers, never wanted it said of him that he gave preference to any member of his own family—in the matter of positions on his staff.

That was why his lovely daughter, Eve, found herself established in a small flat in New York, surrounded by and observing the contents of a hundred and one magazines. Laboriously and very intelligently she was studying the world of fiction from the magazine standpoint.

"When you've mastered the analytical sense and can express it in words that convey your meaning to the readers of my paper—then and only then can you have a position on my staff," Old Adam had told Eve. "If you stay at home here among your friends you won't get anywhere. Hop off to New York for a year and pack that pretty head of yours with first-hand knowledge."

Aunt Clem, her mother's sister, who had come along with her, bored at times into reading the personals in the papers, came across the advertisement that gave her an idea.

It read, "Old magazines wanted by writer." Aunt Clem answered the advertisement and left a huge bundle of magazines to be called for.

Not by the proverbial candle, but beside a well-lighted table, young Avery Weldon carried on his as yet embryonic authorship. But he was working desperately hard to succeed and was reading fiction in the magazines voraciously in order to get a drift with the market.

That was how the huge pile of old magazines happened to be on the floor beside him. He couldn't quite afford to buy all the new ones and his advertisement had brought him many.

Avery scanned the title pages and sat up and rumbled back that smooth gold hair.

"By jove! This is funny!"

Beside the title of the stories were fine marginal notes of criticism, couched in terse but most expressive language.

"Medium. Not bad. Piffle. No point. Wishy-washy. Very good. Why was it given space? Doesn't know men. Needs to study women."

Avery swiftly picked up the publications that had printed his own work and with a somewhat shrinking heart opened the page. Yes, there beside his own story which he had in a moment of stupidity called "Rose of the Desert" he saw the words, "Author in the making, but sadly lacking the human touch."

Avery puffed a bit furiously at his pipe. The nail was hit straight on the head. Avery knew that. A kindly editor had only recently suggested the same thing.

And because a real author must not be strictly conventional or too awfully bound by laws of society, Avery got up, put on his hat and strolled toward the apartment building from whence his magazines had arrived.

The elevator took him up to the fifth floor and there left him. And in another few moments he was standing at an opened door. Aunt Clem herself was out, but Eve had answered his ring.

Avery didn't know what to say now that he was there and with Eve's calm eyes gazing at him he felt that he made rather a sorry story of the incident of buying the old magazines. But Eve was very nice about it and invited him in.

"I didn't even know my aunt had cleared them out," she said as he followed her into a magazine-strewn room.

"I wanted so desperately to chat with the critic who had jotted those remarks down that I chanced coming here," he said, boyishly. "My dad has given me a year to make good in story writing, bless him," he went on, seeing the kindling interest in Eve's eyes, "and I believe if you'd be so good as to help me, with criticism I could win out."

"I know you could," was Eve's unexpected reply. "I see it somewhere in the deep places of your stories—I would love to help you."

She told him then about her own dad and who he was and all about home, and Avery laughed. Then he pulled a frayed letter from his pocket—a letter written some six months before, and handed it to her.

"Avery, my boy," it ran, "while you're messing about with your writing, just take time to look up Old Adam Grant's daughter. She's gone to New York to make good, too. Fine girl, too, from what her dad says, but then perhaps I say the same to Grant, about my boy—" Eve read no further until she had cast accusing eyes at Avery.

"I like that! Six whole months and you've never even taken the trouble—"

"And darn glad I am, too," said Avery. "If I knew you all this time I doubt if a single story would have left the typewriter—I should have been bumped into a dream so glorious I—oh, I say, Eve, when do we go back home—I'm longing for the time when I can get down to hard work and make use of all this study to do the big work that only you can help me with."

Aunt Clem came in and smiled—she knew a thing or two.

ABORIGINE SHORN OF FANTASTIC MYTH

Liked Fine Raiment and Could Fight.

Columbus, Ohio.—The mound-building aborigine of America, stripped of the fantastic myths which have hovered above him, is revealed as a savage who loved fine raiment and ornamentation, paid great attention to ceremonials, trafficked with distant tribes, and could fight when he had to.

This appraisal has been reached by the Ohio State Archeological and Historical society after more than two decades of exploration in the great mounds of earth and stone built as ceremonial sites, and found in their greatest completeness in Ohio.

A patient striving for beauty is depicted in the remains of mound-building civilization uncovered in recent months in the Seip mound, scene of "The Great Pearl Burial of Ohio." In this primitive but recent regal tomb of the red man were unearthed five kinds of cloth, leather finely tanned and dressed, and thousands upon thousands of pearls.

Within the mound, 250 feet long, 150 feet wide and 27 feet high, explorers found under a layer of cobblestones an interior mound built of puddled loam, inclosing four burial cribs of logs, 16 feet square.

Two men, two women and two children were the skeletal occupants of the tomb, the men resting on copper breastplates. Around them were myriads of fresh water mussel pearls, some the size of small seeds and others big as hazelnuts. All had been worn as necklaces, armlets, anklets or stomachers.

Beneath the copper plates was disclosed evidence of the splendid burial robes on which the dead were laid. They were beautifully woven, in conventional designs with concentric circles and curving bands, and colored with vegetable dyes in red, maroon, orange, yellow and black. In the moment of their finding, archeology's estimate of mound builder culture was lifted to a new plane.

Five pipes carved from steatite, a dense dark stone flecked with crystal, were found—all highly polished, one weighing more than seven pounds. They were ceremonial council pipes, two carved to resemble dogs and others fashioned after an owl, a bear and a whippoorwill.

Delving again into the mound this summer, President Arthur C. Johnson, Sr., and the society, and H. C. Shetrone, curator of its museum, expect to find new treasures at its heart. Even if the mound yields nothing more, its exploration has added a fascinating chapter to the century-long search into the unwritten history of America's ancient peoples.

INSECT FOES OF MAN ARE VANISHING, SAYS SCIENTIST

Texas Entomologist Declares That Bugs Will Never Gain Upper Hand Over Human Race.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Belief that insects may gain the upper hand over mankind was termed far out of the realm of probability by R. R. Reppert, entomologist from Texas A. and M. college.

"Every insect that has threatened mankind has been exterminated or brought under control," Reppert said. "It is at times when insects are causing huge financial damage that some persons think they are getting the upper hand."

"For example, yellow fever, caused by the bite of a mosquito, is now only a memory, whereas a few decades ago it caused thousands of deaths. Bubonic plague, spread largely by the bite of fleas that had been on infected rats, also is almost unheard of."

Some bugs are friends of the human race in that they prey on other bugs and insects that are enemies of man in destroying his crops, Reppert said. This is one of the most important methods used by the United States bureau of entomology in fighting insect pests.

"Perhaps man's greatest friend among bugs and insects is the one commonly known as the ladybug," Reppert said. "By the way, in speaking of the ladybug, don't use the pronoun 'she,' because the bug is not a feminine product as the name sounds. The ladybug lives on many kinds of insects that eat and destroy various farm crops."

"These bugs are imported into pest-infested areas and it is not long until the pest is gone. A few years ago some ladybugs were imported in south Texas and they made such quick work of the pests that they soon starved to death."

"In both California and Florida the state governments recognize the ladybug's value and take steps to propagate it."

Spraying against pests, especially the boll weevil and insects that attack trees, has served to check them, Reppert said, but the most satisfactory method is to find the insect that is their natural enemy and make a counter-attack.

Free Sun Bath Allowed By Permeable Clothing

London.—Sunlight treatment will be
presently available, not only artificial-
ly and inexpensively, but will be free
for all if the claim put forth by Prof. A. M. Low proves justified.
This British scientist claims to have
devised a method by which clothing
without change of appearance or durability becomes permeable to ultra violet rays.

Clothes from the treated material
would mean health for all men and women, the scientist declares. His
claimed discovery of a free sun bath treatment while you walk was made by chance in the course of an X-ray experiment.

It's a wise woman who knows half
that she would like to know about
her neighbors.

There are some things that are better said than done, but lovemaking
isn't one of them.

A corn and apple show is to be an
annual feature at a bank in Baltimore
County, Maryland. Another banker
has been able to get his county to
"thinking corn," over 500 farmers
planting improved corn. Many other
bankers in the state are giving moral
support and funds to this work.

The rogue of black and white this season is interestingly interpreted in this bouffant evening gown of white

Ignorance and Crime

Statistics on crime among the young
in Czechoslovakia, recently made public in Prague, show that in the parts
of the republic where opportunities
for schooling were formerly lacking,
criminality in youth is most preva-
lent.

MANLESS TRACTOR AMAZES FARMERS

Plows Without Guidance in Exhibition Test.

Lincoln, Neb.—A machine that
plows a field without human guidance
was given a demonstration at the agricultural college farm recently.

Groups of interested persons
watched the machine as it went
about alone, with no hand at the
wheel, guided solely by an arm carrying a shoe gliding along the furrow made on the previous round. To prepare a field for this operation requires that the first furrow be made
under guidance and that the corners
be rounded off by the same means to permit the machine to plow around
the field without stopping.

A safety pilot, the invention of
Frank L. Zybach, a young farmer,
guided the plow around this field with-
out stopping, except when for demonstration purposes the guide was lifted
out of the furrow. Then the machine
automatically came to rest.

A simple device costing from $35
to $50 which can be attached to any
tractor can be made to guide a gang
of plows day and night, 22 hours out of 24 if necessary, with only the casual attention of the farmer. Theoretically plowing can go on all day
and all night. It only requires two hours out of the 24 to water and fuel
and care for the engine. Even the
experimental machines have been left
alone to plow, while the farmer goes
to town and remains away for hours.

The Good Time Coming

President John H. Moss was re-
sponding to a toast in his honor at a
Kiwanis banquet in Milwaukee:

"The condition of Russia under Bol-
shevism," he went on, "was curiously
hit off by an I. W. W. orator, who
shouted from his soap box one day:

"Yes, gents, there's a good time
comin' when every man'll do what he
likes, and if he don't, he'll be made to, by crinuss!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE AMERICAN QUARTET

The American quartet, four singing Pennsylvania railroad boys from Chicago, were the feature entertainment on the Livestock day program.
The quartet is named after the Pennsylvania's famous St. Louis-New York train.

The quartet was booked thru the
courtesy of Earl Hilyard, agent for
the Pennsylvania railroad.

These Pennsylvania songsters are
all regularly employed members of
the Pennsylvania's huge personnel
numbering 200,000 employees. They were picked from the Chicago forces
of the Pennsylvania and, altho rail-
roading is their business, they can
sing equally well.

Members of the Pennsylvania Four
are J. I. Kirsch, first tenor, O. C.
Owens, second tenor, George I. Laing
baritone and R. E. Cook, bass.

On their regular railroad jobs, Mr.
Kirsch is a traveling signal inspector and an expert on automatic train
control, which the Pennsylvania is
now installing extensively on its
main lines. Mr. Owens is in the telegraph and signal department. Mr.
Laing is in the transportation department and Mr. Cook is a ticket seller
at the Pennsylvania railroad counter
in the consolidated ticket offices in Chicago. Art Johler, piano accompanist, is a tariff expert in the
freight traffic department at Chicago.

Sheep Growers' Handicap

In Australia conditions for sheep
raising are so ideal that shrinkage is
light. The Ohio region in this country produces as good wool as is grown anywhere. The sheep growers in the western range states have hardships to overcome in the way of climatic conditions that handicap them somewhat.

Chinese Surnames

There is a book published in China giving 100 of the most common and well-known surnames called the "Pa Chia Sing"—i. e., the 100 family surnames. In Dr. Herbert A. Giles' Chinese-English dictionary there is a list of Chinese family names or surnames given. The list comprises over two thousand names.

AMUSEMENTS

A group of literary hodcarriers and serious minded funmakers have undertaken the task of literally building a house of laughs.

The fortunate poker player who could point to his home as "the house that Jack built" had nothing on Edward Small, who built "McFadden's Flats" for the screen from nothing more weighty than grins, chuckles and uproarious guffaws.

With the aid of a cast of players that is declared to be as nearly a reproduction of the original cast in the stage comedy as present day conditions will permit "McFadden's Flats" known to the amusement world as the funniest of plays for more than a quarter of a century, has been put in films.

And instead of seeing the customary canvas drop that served for the stage production of the comedy, the flats have been erected for the screen story to serve as a professional home for such players as Charlie Murray, Chester Conklin, Edna Murphy, Dorothy Dwan and a host of celebrities who were not permitted to draw a serious breath for several weeks.

The comic classic will be shown at the Met theater Monday.

THE LAST SAD RITES FOR SAMUEL WESLEY DUNLAP

All That Was Mortal of This Exemplary Citizen Tenderly Laid To Rest In Beautiful Springlawn Cemetery—Life Was Full of Good Deeds And the Results of His Labor And Benefactions Cannot Be Estimated—His Labors Here Are Ended, He Has Heard the Merited "Well Done" And Has Gone To His Eternal Reward.

Solemn and impressive were the last funeral rites for Samuel Wesley Dunlap, one of the county's most prominent and best loved citizens, which was held from the family home on South Court street, Friday afternoon.

He was the oldest child of John and Mary Ann Minear Dunlap and was born in Ross county near Andersonville, April 12, 1841. His ancestors on both sides had been pioneers in Ohio. In early manhood he took up his residence on a farm in Monroe township, this county, and was an active farmer and stock breeder for more than forty years. In 1905, he and his wife moved to the house on the corner of Court and Union streets which has been the family home since. He kept the active management of much of his business until within the last few years.

Mr. Dunlap was active in other lines besides his business. For more than thirty years he was a member of the Monroe township board of education and for most of that time was president of the board. Most of the school houses in that township which are just now being abandoned for the centralized school were built during his membership on the board of education. Mr. Dunlap was actively interested in the formation and development of the Anti-Saloon League and at the time of his death was, as he has been for many years a member of the state headquarters committee.

He was a pioneer financial backer of the temperance and prohibition movement in this state. He was a close friend of Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, Purley Baker, Rev. Ernest H. Cherrington and Wayne B. Wheeler.

He made the first real donation towards the building of the American Issue publishing House at Westerville, which today stands as a monument to the pioneers of the temperance movement.

Mr. Dunlap became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in early life and was active always in the work of the church contributing liberally of his time and money. He was a member of the building committee of the Methodist church both in Williamsport and Circleville. For more than sixty years he was a member of these two churches continuing to serve on the Williamsport board for several years after he moved his residence to Circleville.

In 1912 he was a delegate from the Ohio conference to the Methodist General conference in Minneapolis. He was a member until his death of the Lancaster Campmeeting and Assembly board and until 1925 occupied each year his cottage on the camp ground.

Besides his wife two sons and one daughter survive; John H., and S. Arthur Dunlap of near Williamsport both successful farmers, and Miss Flora Dunlap, who has been at home the past two years, assisting in the care of her aged father. Miss Dunlap, like her parents, was imbued with the love for the temperance work and for the past twenty years was the headworker of the Roadside Settlement House at Des Moines, Iowa and is still a member of the board. Camp Dunlap, a refuge for tired working girls, was named for her. She had been in residence at Kingsley House, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Goodrich House, Cleveland and Hull house, Chicago, Illinois, before taking up settlement work in Iowa. Her services have extended beyond social work, including educational and women suffrage work and she has also taken considerable interest in the federation of Women's clubs.

He leaves one grandson, John H. Dunlap Jr., of Williamsport.

Five ministers attended the funeral services of Mr. Dunlap; Rev. Franklin McElfresh, of this city, was in charge; Rev. W. W. Trout of Williamsport, read a hymn, Rev. J. W. Blair, superintendent of Chillicothe, gave the eulogy, Rev. W. S. Fisher, of Kingston, gave the closing prayer, and Rev. D. H. Jemison, of Cincinnati gave the benediction at the graveside.

Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Wilby G. Hyde, Charles M. Dunlap, Charles M. Dunlap Jr., Miss Clara Dunlap, Philip and Robert Dunlap, Judge and Mrs. George B. Bitzer, Miss Florence Bitzer, George Grimes, Mrs. Frank M. Marr, Mrs. French Wingett, Mrs. Will Stitt, David Dunlap, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Hyde, Albert Betts, of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Schein, Mr. and Mrs. George Schein, Miss Lena Schein, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Heiskell, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Morgan, Samuel M. Ulm, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Hunsicker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap, John H. Dunlap Jr., Mr. and Mrs. S. Arthur Dunlap, of Williamsport; Renick W. Dunlap of Washington D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, Mr. and Mrs. James McColister and son, Mrs. Milton Graham, Mrs. Elton Hurst, of Clarksburg; James Sleppy and John Thompson, of Columbus; Mrs. Jean Stuckey, of West Jefferson; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson J. Smith William Imler and William Gillie, of Williamsport.

The burial was in the family lot in Springlawn cemetery at Williamsport.

Dahlia Improved

Originally the dahlia is a Mexican weed now transformed by breeders into probably the most varied color and shape wonder of the floral kingdom. From a small, single flower about the size of a cosmos to the present show, cactus and peony type, varying with cultivation and food from four to fourteen inches in diameter have not been a far cry—in the last fifty years nearly all of this bloom transformation has taken place.

All of Them Willing to Testify to That

Robert W. Chambers said in a literary argument at the Century club: "It is claimed that our new school of psycho-analytic novelists are better writers than the novelists of the past, but who is it makes this claim?"

Mr. Chambers smiled and went on: "An amateur photographer said one day:

"Here's an article that says the finest work in photography is now being done by amateurs."

"Is this statement true?" asked his companion.

"Of course it's true. If you don't believe it, ask any—"

"Any photographer?"

"No. Any amateur."

There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:

1. It must give perfect lubrication.

3. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.

On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and recommend them to our customers.

STODDARD*Tells of the Danger In Race Hatred.

The hatred for white foreigners now being shown by the Chinese Nationalists is only one manifestation of the growing enmity of the other races for the white, declares Lothrop Stoddard, noted ethnologist and writer, in an article in this week's Liberty. "The Chinese crisis, big as it is," Stoddard contends, "is only part of the larger whole."

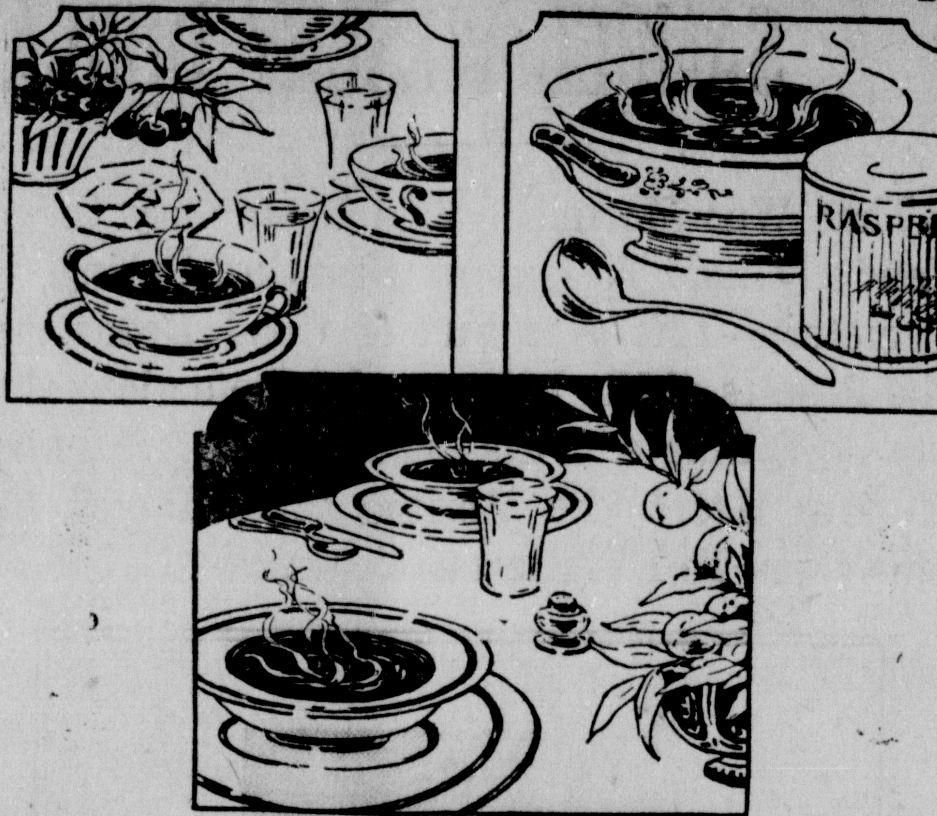

"For several centuries," the author explains, "Europe has been mistress of the world. Europeans had gone exploring and conquering and empire-building to the remotest quarters of the earth. Against other peoples the white nations felt themselves invincible. And, for a long time, the non-white peoples reluctantly accepted the situation."

"Then, just ten years before the Great War," the writer continues, "something happened that changed the whole situation. That something was the Russo-Japanese War. That Japanese victory shook white prestige to its foundation. Everywhere the spell of white invincibility was broken, and the peoples of Asia and Africa began to dream of some day doing what the Japanese had done."

"The Chinese Nationalists today are merely trying to do what the Turkish Nationalists actually did do yesterday. And if the Turks and Chinese can get away with it, why can't much the same thing happen to the British in India, to the United States in the Philippines, and to the other Western powers that have colonies or treaty rights or investments in Asia or Africa?"

MELLON GIVES $1,000

Washington, June 3.—(UP.)—Treasury officials today confirmed reports that Secretary Andrew F. Mellon had contributed $1,000 to the families of Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, missing French transatlantic flyers.

The Fashionable Fruit Soup

IN these days of weight-reducing, few people want a heavy soup as a prelude to roast meat or other substantial dishes. What is required is something in the nature of an appetizer. This gave rise to the fruit cocktail, and newer still, the fruit soup.

Peach Soup: Soak three-quarters of a cup of rolled oats over night in a quart of cold water and a pint of juice drained from canned peaches. Stir, strain, and bring to a boil. Season with salt, pepper, and sugar. With this serve saltines that have been sprinkled with grated cheese and left in the oven until the cheese is melted.

Raspberry Soup: Drain the juice from a quart can of red raspberries. Add two cups of water and a pinch of cayenne. Heat, thicken slightly with two tablespoons of arrowroot blended with a little cold water stirred into the mixture until it boils. Take from fire, and add immediately the juice of one lemon. Serve hot or cold. This makes six servings. The berries may be used in tarts or other ways.

Hot Cherry Bouillon: Drain the juice from a quart of canned cherries, add a stick of cinnamon, and boil for three or four minutes. Add clear consommé, season with salt and pepper, and thicken with arrowroot.

Freezing Fruits In the Cans

FROZEN canned fruits are one of the latest favorites for summer salads and desserts. Many fruits are canned individually, and there is one combination can which contains peaches, pineapples, pears, cherries and apricots and is called Fruits for Salad.

The newest wrinkle is to freeze the fruits right in the can. Pack the can in salt and ice, and leave it there at least two hours. Before opening the can, dip it into hot water so that the frozen cylinder of fruit within will slide out easily. Slice this cylinder for individual servings. Place the slices on individual plates, and serve for dessert, garnished with whipped cream and maraschino cherries. Or they taste equally good on lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

Any of the canned fruits may be frozen and served in these ways, and frozen tomatoes, too, make a particularly delicious salad, adding salt and paprika as well as mayonnaise. A modern can opener is an essential for this process. There is one particular type of opener that has a special arrangement for holding the can when you dip it into hot water, so that you can do so without burning your fingers, and is made so that it will remove the whole top of the can without leaving any jagged edges.

Watch The Children Grow

THERE are certain rules and foods that mothers should insist on if their children are to develop equanimity of temperament and strength of body and mind.

Food containing A, B, and C vitamins are necessary for all children, and on this account tomatoes, oranges, pineapple and other fruits and vegetables, and milk, should be given them often. During the adolescent period there is especial need of foods rich in iron. To help the mother plan a diet high in iron and vitamin content, the frequent use of the following foods is suggested: eggs, peas, beans, spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, nuts, raisins, dates, prunes, figs, oatmeal, whole wheat, rye and graham bread, milk, lean beef.

Canned foods are not only a boon but a necessity to all who would add zest and variety to their children's diet; for at any time of year and in any place they are at hand, a steadfast, culinary friend, always reliable, and fully as nutritious as though they had just been gathered in the garden and cooked at home.

Vegetables, fruits, cereals and milk should form the main diet of children. Tomato juice as a cool drink, or combined with the liquid from other canned vegetables is very wholesome because of its wealth of vitamins.

By a judicious use of evaporated milk a meal may be made to yield extra calories. Undiluted, it has all the components of whole milk—it is whole milk!—and with certain other foods, suits the taste of many people much better. For instance, in cocoa, in cream soups, in scallopes and puddings, evaporated milk, undiluted, helps to produce a richer dish than when the ordinary fresh milk is used.

DENIES HE'S QUIT

Your Engine Is No Exception. As it grows older it will wear. As it wears it needs a new lubrication diagnosis. Give it an oil of more body. Sinclair provides in the line of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils several different grades of oils to serve the various clearances and degrees of wear encountered in all engines. Why not drive in and consult the Sinclair Recommendation Index, perhaps there is a grade of Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil better for your engine than the one you are now using.

CANDY

Is Complete Food Condensed Energy Supply.

Candy is a strength giving diet that does not make fat unless it is greatly over-eaten. It is a complete food, containing besides sugar, milk, eggs, butter, chocolate, nuts, fruits, molasses, gelatine, and other high power concentrated foods. The sugar in candy which is only a part of its content, is the most concentrated and quickest of heat and energy suppliers. The other elements make it a balanced food.

Candy has the biggest fuel value and practically no bulk. The woman who is reducing can keep up her strength and snap on a little candy that will supply the place of heavy foods and starches that are the fat makers. Candy enables women to eat smaller and lighter meals.

DOHENY

Turns Over Eleven Million Dollars To U. S.

Washington, June 2.—Settlement of the receiver's accounts in the Doheny oil case, under which more than $11,000,000 in cash and Liberty bonds accruing from the sale of oil from the Elk Hills, Calif., naval reserve is turned in to the federal treasury, was announced today by Secretary Wilbur.

It is in conformity with the supreme court decision cancelling the Doheny lease to the Elk Hills reserve and returning to the government all money derived from the sale of oil while the property was in the hands of a receiver.

Play on Stripes in Spring Frock

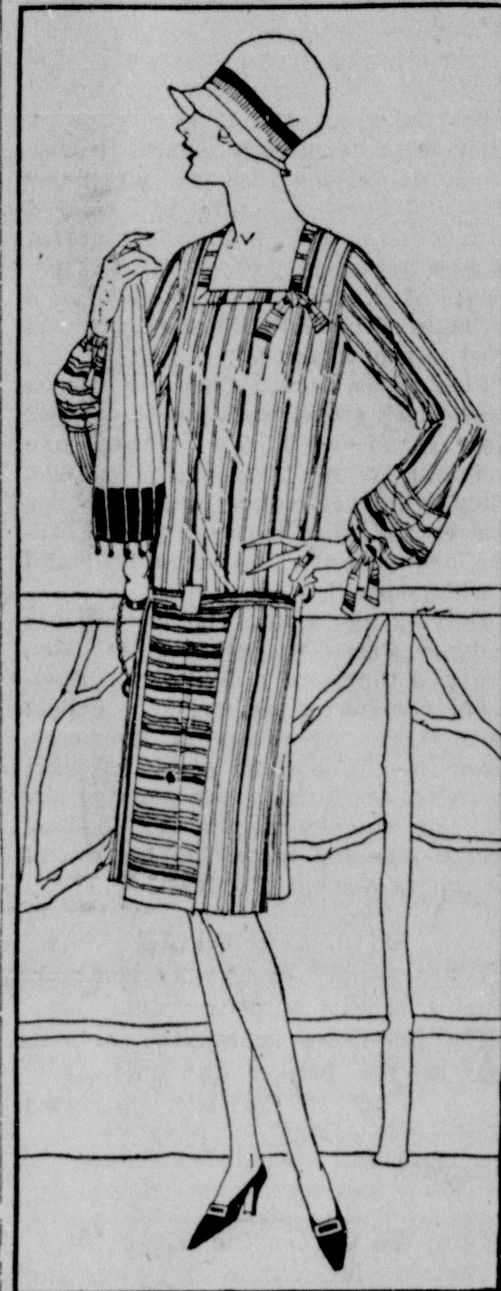

Self-Material Interestingly Converted Into an Effective Trimming.

Most women would prefer a smart frock to a practical one, but if the union of the two can be successfully accomplished, a real service has been performed, says the Woman's Home Companion.

In this frock, the combination of horizontal and vertical stripes is distinctly a spring style trend. By reversing the stripes for front panel, sleeve puffs and neck facing, self-material is converted into effective trimming. At the same time there is a very practical idea underlying this treatment of stripes, for by this method the frock can be cut from three yards of 40-inch material with almost no waste. The skirt portion is in three sections, which of course accounts for the economy in the cutting, but in no way detracts from the style value.

Nor does the economy of material interfere with freedom of movement, for four plaits, two on each side of the skirt, allow plenty of room for comfortable walking.

Even less than three yards of material will make this dress if one-fourth yard of contrasting material is used for the sleeve puffs and neck facing. In this case only two and three-eighths yards of forty-inch material are needed. It will not appear to be obvious makeshift, for contrasting sleeve puffs and neck trimming are frequently features of smart frocks when quantity of material is not a consideration. Organdie or batiste is suitable for this touch of contrast or perhaps a plain material which corresponds to the striped body of the dress.

As illustrated, this frock is made of washable silk showing three tones of rose separated by stripes of black and white.

Cotton material also will be found an excellent medium for this frock.

Paris Designers Have

Own Ideas About Colors

So many colors have been launched by the haute couture this spring and so many new shades have been inaugurated by the textile manufacturers that the color question is becoming rather involved. It is not possible to point to one or two shades and say that these are the leading hues of the new season, yet out of the host of colors exploited by Paris it is both interesting and profitable to note the various favorites of the different couturiers. From the appended observations you will gather some idea of the colors evinced by the Paris haute couture.

Lelong, Lanvin, Doucet and other Paris houses continue to emphasize blues of every imaginable tint—ranging from forget-me-not blue to the dark indigo mosaic, the lavender hyacinth blue and the violet periwinkle and the cool sky blue called siltine. Martial et Armand, Paul Poiret and Madeleine Vionnet stress black and white—especially for afternoon wear.

Two or three contrasting colors are now combined in one costume by Parisian designers. For instance, Chantal used alternating vivid hues in bands and panels. He showed a blue cape over a dress of the same shade, trimmed with gray, green and orange. In another model several different colors were stitched together in skirt panels.

Lanvin designed the culotte, or trouser skirt, in a sports costume of pistache-green crepe. The skirt is bloused and divided and very full—the fullness caught over the hips with button fastening at the front.

LADIES' SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Society of Trinity Lutheran congregation was held Wednesday evening, June 1st in the social room of the church. Readings were given by Mrs. H. H. Groce, Mrs. J. R. Noecker and Mrs. Frank Heffner. During the social hour Mrs. Mary Morris, Mrs. Anna Foresman and Mrs. Wm. Fitzpatrick rendered several pleasing vocal selections. A dainty lunch of brick ice cream, cake, mints and coffee was served by the June committee.

We Carry a Line—For Good Reasons

No Watch Perfect

The bureau of standards says it is a well-known fact that it is impossible to secure a perfect adjustment of a watch—that is, to eliminate all variations in the watch's rate. It is, in fact, impossible to secure perfection of rate in any respect owing to the interrelation of the various adjustments and to certain factors which prevent the securing of ideal uniformity of rates.
